A homemade product swimming for the Queen

By Andrew P. Baggot State Journal sports reporter

·She didn't say a thing about tea and crumpets.

Princess Di wasn't mentioned at all.

Liverpool's latest soccer triumph was passed over completelv.

And, horrors, she didn't even have an accent.

Chances are good, too, that Annabelle Cripps didn't curtsy at all during the conversation. But tradition and other frivolous chit-chat aren't at the top of Cripps' priority list right now.

She's in California with the rest of the world's athletic greats, ready to swim for the good of the Queen and the British homeland in the Summer Olympic Games. Funny thing, though. Great Britain isn't exactly home for Cripps.

That story in a moment.

At 16, Cripps is the youngest member of the women's swim team representing Great Britain. She will compete in the 200-meter and 800-meter freestyle events in Los Angeles as well as take her place in the leadoff spot on the 4x100 relay team.

She's currently making final. preparations with the rest of the British team while staying on the campus of San Diego State. Monday she'll dive into her first Olympics when she's called to the blocks for the opening heat in the 200

Parliament were not among Cripps' uppermost thoughts. She was 11 then, just another all-American girl, attending Edgewood School in Madison and doing things any ordinary kid would do. She was a swimmer then, too. As a matter of fact, she set her first record as an 8-year-old in the 1976 all-city meet when she was clocked in 17.02 seconds in the 25meter freestyle.

Little did she know, though, that great plans were being laid for her future.

Her father, Dr. Derek Cripps, is a Madison dermatologist, a transplanted Englishman (he left for America in 1965) and ex-world class swimmer. A butterfly specialist, he was good enough to swim for Great Britian in the 1952 Helsinki Olympics, but didn't make the trip because, among other reasons, there wasn't enough money

Anyway, like two brothers before her, Dr. Cripps wanted his daughter to have the same kind of educational opportunities and swimming training he had, thus the groundwork for his daughter's migration was put down. She left for her induction abroad in September of 1979.

"My father always wanted me to swim for England," Annabelle said in a telephone visit last week. "He's always been English at heart and wanted to keep it that way

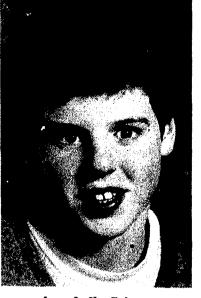

"If it weren't for my parents, I wouldn't be swimming here, I know that," said added. "They've always been there to encourage me and help me."

Expensive encouragement, too. The monthly overseas telephone bill runs about $400, figures Annabelle. She says without a moment's hesitation that she couldn't do without the encouragement.

For the benefit of those who remember Cripps when she attended Edgewood, there's this warning: she's changed. "I've grown up a lot being over there (England)," said Cripps, who will graduate from Wigan Technical Institute next year with an inclination to get into the world of business. "I've met a lot of interesting people and learned a lot since I've been here, especially through swimming."

The looks have changed, too. She has the tapered dimensions of a world-class swimmer - 140 pounds draped over a 5-foot-11 frame.

She began her tutelage abroad in Devon County, training for two years under Terry Davis. Since then she has been with Keith Bewley, a two-time gold medalist in the Commonwealth Games, who has Cripps and his other charges working on varying technique.

"I train different than anyone else and that's why he's a good coach for me," said Cripps, who has returned every summer since 1981 to work with Jack Pettinger, the men's coach at the University of Wisconsin. "We don't concentrate on one thing, which I think is good for my training.

"We work mostly on freestyle events and mostly on the longer distances. It's really helped in the last couple months (endurancewise) since we've been competing a lot."

Indeed. Even after Cripps qualified for the Olympic team, there were places to go and races to be won. The team was given a week off immediately after the trials, but then it was off to Sweden for a tuneup meet, then back to London for more training before making the trip to Califor-

Fingers ties save record

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Rollie Fingers is more worried about saving games than collecting "save" numbers

Milwaukee's veteran right-hander registered his 23rd save of the season Monday in a 6-4 victory over the New York Yankees. The save was his 216th in the American League, tying him with former New York and Texas reliever Sparky Lyle for the league lead. Fingers holds the major-league mark with 324.

"I didn't know what I had until someone mentioned it to me after the game," Fingers said of tying the AL record. "I was more worried about saving the game for Don (Sutton)."

"But as long as I keep saving games, that's OK with me," he added with a laugh.

Sutton improved his record to 9-8, winning his third successive game and the sixth of his last seven starts. Fingers has saved every Sutton victory this season.

"If you had had me around all your career," Sutton kidded Fingers, "vou'd have 500 saves."

Fingers worked the final 2% innings, not giving up a run while allowing four hits and leaving five runners on base.

In the ninth the Yankees loaded the bases with one out, but Fingers got Don Mattingly on a pop-up and Don Baylor on a routine fly to right to end the game.

"We've been playing good ball," said New York Manager Yogi Berra. "We've been playing catch-up ball. I thought maybe we'd catch them to-

Lewis' possible return clouds Childs' future

Packer notes

By John Hughes State Journal sports reporter

GREEN BAY - A week ago, Henry Childs looked like a shoo-in to become the backup tight end for the Green Bay Packers, behind Paul Coffman. But late last week, the name of former Packer Gary Lewis came up again, so Childs isn't sure now where he fits into the picture. "I keep hearing these rumors " he said Monday. But for the moment, Childs remains the bird in the hand, so to speak. Lewis, who played tight end for the Packers for three seasons before jumping to the United States Football League last winter, was waived out of the USFL by his former team, the Chicago Blitz, last week. Lewis said he wants to return to the Packers and the Packers said they would be glad to have him.

ers' receivers coach. "If he continues to progress the way he has, he'll help US.

Sunday, in the Packers' first extended scrimmage of training camp, Childs showed his ability as a receiver by making a great catch of a

Lewis needs time off

Still to be resolved, however, is the matter of a mutually agreed upon salary — which is why he left in the first place - and vacation time. Lewis, who has played football almost continuously for the last 11 months, said he might not be ready to play again until the middle of September.

Childs has the opposite problem. He's a nine-year National Football League veteran, but he hasn't played in 21/2 years.

He found out Monday morning that it's not easy returning from a long layoff as the Packers practiced for two hours in 90-degree heat and almost equal humidity.

"This morning was my roughest day," said Childs, who, at 33, is the second-oldest player on the roster behind 35-year-old quarterback Lynn Dickey. "I was struggling a little bit. But I think everybody was hurting this morning." Dickey, by the way, is responsible for bringing Childs and the Packers together.

Dickey, who has a vested interest in pass receivers - and blockers called Childs in April and filled him in on the Green Bay tight end situation. They knew each other from their college days at Kansas State. Dickey was a senior when Childs was a freshman.

Childs all-Pro in '79

Drafted by Atlanta in 1974, Childs was released in October of that season and signed by the New Orleans Saints, where he played for the next 6¼ years. He caught 53 passes in 1978 and 51 in '79, a performance that earned him a spot on the National Football Conference Pro Bowl team.

was traded twice, first to the Washington Redskins and then to the Los Angeles Rams, where he played half a season being sidelined with a foot injury. The next year he was cut by the Rams before the season started and he hasn't played since.

During the off-season in 1981 he

"I felt that I still had something to give," he said of his decision to return to football.

"He's done a good job to this point," said Lew Carpenter, the Pack-pass from Dickey on a play that covered 31 yards.

Carpenter wasn't surprised.

"His biggest strength when he was playing was that he was a super pass receiver," he said.

But Childs, a 6-foot-2, 226-pounder, doesn't want folks to take that as meaning he can't block also.

"When I played in New Orleans,

Ganassi's condition still serious

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) - Chip Ganassi, injured in the accidentmarred Michigan 500 Sunday, remained in serious condition Monday while officials continued to sort out the order of finish in the chaotic race at Michigan International Speedway.

Mario Andretti officially was declared the winner and Tom Sneva officially was certified as the second-place finisher. But the next seven places remained in doubt after Gordon Johncock protested that his car was passed by five others under a yellow flag.

Johncock filed the objection after he came in fourth. Race spokeswoman Marty Rompf said a hearing into the protest would be held within two weeks with the third through 10th finishers. Rick Mears, Geoff Brabham, Josele Garza, Poncho Carter and Johnny Rutherford are the drivers alleged to have passed Johncock.

Ganassi, meanwhile, remained in University Hospital in Ann Arbor with head injuries sustained when his car hit a concrete wall during race, then struck the one driven by Al Unser Jr. He suffered swelling of his brain, minor cuts and bruises and a broken bone in his right hand, said hospital spokesman John Woodford.

Auction for thoroughbreds begins

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - The Keeneland July Selected Yearling Sale, traditionally the world's richest public auction of thorougbreds, aimed for more records Monday as the wealthiest horsemen in the world gathered in the capital of the thoroughbred breeding industry.

There was some apprehension, however, as officials of the Keeneland Association wondered whether a recent outbreak of a potentially dangerous equine virus would depress this year's two-day sale.

The test was expected Monday night with the scheduled auction of a bay colt by Northern Dancer, the world's premier thoroughbred sire. The colt is out of Ballade, making him a half-brother to last year's 2-year-old champion Devil's Bag.

The colt was given the best chance of bringing a sale price above the record $10.2 million paid last year by Sheikh Mohammed al Maktoum of Dubai, United Arab Emirates, for a colt by Northern Dancer-My Bupers.

With his chance for an Olympic medal returned to him by a U.S. Cycling Federation jury, bicycle racer Alexi Grewal said Monday in Denver he was happy that "the pressure is off now" and vowed that "I'll be on top of it again" in time for the start of the Summer Games.

Last week, Grewal was suspended from competition for 30 days after a banned substance was found during a urine test conducted during the Coors International Bicycle Classic in Colorado. However, after an all-night hearing the Cycling Federation jury reinstated him on Monday.

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) -Aaron Krickstein, a junior in amateur ranks a year ago, became the youngest player to win the U.S. Pro Tennis championship Monday night, rallying for a 7-6, 3-6, 6-4 victory over defending champion Jose-Luis Clerc.

Krickstein, 16-year-old son of a Grosse Pointe, Mich., doctor, staged a dramatic comeback in dethroning the Argentine on Longwood's clay courts.

Clerc manhandled the young upstart in the second set and appeared en route to another U.S. Pro title, which he won in 1981 and '83 on one of his favorite stops.

Zola Budd, the 18-year-old barefoot runner, has emerged victorious from the political arena, winning the right to face American Mary Decker and other Olympic rivals in the 3,000 meters in Los Angeles.

Budd, a South African-born British citizen, was officially declared eligible Sunday for the Olympics when the International Olympic Committee director said she will not be affected by IOC restrictions on naturalized athletes.

Budd, whose grandfather was born in England, was granted British citizenship on March 25.

"She is a British citizen by descent and not by naturalization," Director Monique Berlioux said.

"I am absolutely delighted," Charles Stuart Palmer, chairman of the British Olympic Association, said Monday. "I expect her to go ahead now and win her share of gold medals for Britain."

Budd will be entered in the 3,000 meters, the race that will feature Decker, considered by many the best women's middle distance runner in the world.

Decker holds the American record in the 3.000. Budd bettered world marks while running for South Africa, but the marks were not recognized because of sanctions against South Africa stemming from its racial apartheid policies. Decker is generally favored because of her competitive drives and Budd's inexperi-

In Budd's new country, the announcement of her eligibility was not welcomed by all.

John Ryman, a member of the opposition Labor Party in Parliament, said Budd should be dropped from the British Olympic team to avoid offending African nations.

Attorneys for the United States Olympic Committee contended before a federal appeals panel Monday in Chicago that the courts are not the place to decide amateur athletic eligibility.

They were appealing a ruling by U.S. District Judge Milton Shadur, who earlier this month ordered that suspended weightlifter Jeff Michels be placed conditionally on the U.S. Olympic weightlifting team.

Michels was suspended for two years by the International Weightlifting Federation after blood tests at last year's Pan-American Games showed abnormal levels of the natural hormone testosterone, which aids muscle development. Michels has challenged those findings.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which heard the arguments, was expected to rule early this week.

Shadur also ordered the USOC. which previously had upheld the ban on Michels, to obtain a hearing for him before the IOC on his eligibility. USOC President William Simon has asked the IOC for a hearing, USOC lawyers said.

If Shadur's injuction is upheld, Michels will leave today for Los Angeles, where the Olympics are scheduled to start Saturday, his attorneys said. But if the injuction is denied, then the USOC probably will not make any effort to have Michels placed on the team, they said.

But even if Michels is on the U.S. team, he would have to be certified to compete by the IOC. The jurisdiction of U.S. courts over the IOC is unclear.

Despite the Soviet bloc boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics, at least 36 reporters and about 80 sports officials from the absent Communist countries have registered to attend the Games. officials of the IOC said Monday.

The Olympics officials, who asked that their names not be used, said the sports officials, referees and umpires from the boycotting countries were taking part in the Games under the auspices of the IOC or the international sports federations.

The officials include Vitaly Smirnov and Constantin Andrianov, the two Soviet IOC members. But Marat Gramov, the president of the Soviet Olympic Committee who played a prominent role in last-minute negotiations to head off the boycott, has not appeared in Los Angeles.

Following the May 8 announcement of the boycott, the IOC cut the original press and photo contingent of the boycotting countries from 167 to less than 90. The number of credentials for the Soviet Union, East Germany and Hungary — originally 35, 32 and 22 respectively - were cut to 18, 16 and 11.

Reader defends Blues but has wrong sport

In a July 15 article on the Madison Capitol's Hockey team, Bill Brophy made reference to "the Madison Blues, a semi-pro team that had about as good of a public image as J.R. Ewing.'

I take serious issue with him on that remark, and the quoted remarks of Mike Eberhardt: "We want to make sure people realize this team isn't going to be like the Blues."

The bronze plaque that enshrines Eddie Lenahan's name as one of the earliest members of Madison's Sports Hall of Fame says: "For nearly four decades the name of Eddie Lenahan was synonomous with Madison baseball as player, manager and enthusiast with the semi-pro Blues. It was his spark that developed the Blues into the best baseball era Madison ever had."

Lenahan "was" the Madison Blues. Any attack on the Blues is an attack on him and the good name and image he and his teams achieved.

When the Chicago Cubs decided to capitalize on the popularity of the Blues and form a new "full professional" Class B affiliate in the old Three Eye League in 1939, they offered the joint position of manager and general manager to Eddie Lenahan because, "He was the best baseball man in Wisconsin."

When an obviously honest, decent and kind person such as Lenahan is mentioned in the same breath as the likes of J.R. Ewing, a prototype of all that is dirty-handed, devious and despicable in society, then those who set forth such innuendoes need to be better informed.

Abe Saperstein, respected founder of the Harlem Globetrotters, said he never had to sign a contract with Eddie to bring his many colored baseball teams to Madison for, "His (Eddie's) handshake was all the guarantee that I needed."

Does that sound like J.R. Ewing? Most, if not all, of Eddie's ball players and visiting teams knew he always paid them their dues first. After the bills were paid, many times there wasn't any thing left for Eddie and his family.

Many of his contemporary ball players used to kid Eddie about his getting up and going to early Sunday Mass before the Sunday's doubleheader on the road. Eddie was a man to be trusted at home and on the road.

For many years "Roundy" Coughlin and Eddie passed out free food baskets to poor and needy families all over the city of Madison before coming home to celebrate Christmas Eve at the Lenahans.

Eddie loved kids and kids loved him. He provided a time before each ballgame to throw out lots of used baseballs for the kids. He made sure that any kid who wanted to get into see a Blues game got a ticket.

Eddie was also very civic-minded and for many years was instrumental in forming a happy and sociable coalition between the Knights of Columbus (of which he was an active member) and the Zor Shrine.

Does that sound like J.R. Ewing? Eddie Lenahan was a man of deep and abiding love - of his God, his country, his family and fellow man and women. J.R. Ewing indeed! He was an imperfect man to be sure, for his fiery Irish temper and aggressive ways were well-known and sometimes misunderstood, but he left a mark for honesty and decency that in our contemporary image-conscious society can be looked at with more depth and understanding before passing judgments or making innuendoes. The Madison Capitols or the Madison Muskies should hope to do as well for even half as long.

I loved, and continue to love Eddie Lenahan and all that he stood for. I revere his name and his memory because I knew him for the deeply loving and caring man that he was. He was my father. - Ray Lenahan, Madison

Editor's note: The Madison Blues referred to in the story was the semi-pro hockey team which played at Hartmeyer Arena in the 1970s, not the Blues' minor league baseball team, which Eddie Lenahan played for.

There, Cripps admits, she'll run directly into a wall called reality. Ranked eighth in the 200 and seventh in the 800 — her least favorite of the two events - she's looking at these Olympics for experience, with a medal located somewhere beyond her wildest dreams.

In the 200, Cynthia Woodhead and Mary Wayte of the U.S. and Cripps' teammate, June Croft, are rated as the top medal prospects in that order. Woodhead, an ex-world record holder, has the fastest time of the group at 1 minute, 58.23 seconds. Croft's is 1:59.74. Cripps' personal best is 2:02.

In the 800, American Tiffany Cohen, Kim Linehan, also of the U.S., and Great Britain's Sarah Hardcastle are rated the favorites.

we had running backs like Chuck Muncie and Tony Galbreath," he said. "I think both of them in the same year had almost 1,000 yards. Anytime two running backs get that kind of yardage, somebody's blocking."

If there has been a problem for Childs so far, it's been getting into football shape. At the mini-camp in late May, Childs showed the effects of his layoff when he dragged through a series of 440-yard runs. He's improved some since then.

"He still hasn't reached the point where he should be," said Carpenter. "He's got to push himself."

Childs said it's getting easier to push because he's just starting to get the old desire back. "The intensity is returning," he said.

And yet he remains aware that he hasn't made the team yet.

"If Gary Lewis comes back, I still could find myself on the outside of football," he said. "I've been around long enough to know that you never have anything made until you get into the regular season . . . then you're still not sure."

Jacobsen wins Hartford Open

Associated Press

Peter Jacobsen faltered briefly Sunday but held on to his narrow lead and won the Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open in Cromwell, Conn., by two strokes.

On the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, rookie Juli Inkster shrugged off her 3-over-par 75 on Saturday to close with a sparkling 67 and earn a 1-stroke victory over a Ayako Okamoto in the du Maurier Classic tournament in Toronto.

In Castle Rock, Colo., Miller Barber ran off five birdies to pull away from the field and coast to a 3-stroke victory in the Denver Post Champions of Golf seniors tournament.

In the regular PGA event, Jacobsen, 30, shot a 1-under-par 70 to edge his playing partner, Mark O'Meara, and win the $72,000 top prize.

Both Jacobsen and O'Meara had shot course-record 63s in Saturday's third round on the par-71, 6,800-yard Tournament Players Club of Connecticut course.

It was the second PGA victory of the season for Jacobsen who won the Colonial-NIT in May.

Jacobsen's four-round total of 269 was four strokes ahead of third-place finishers Gary Hallberg and Bill Kratzert, and seven better than fourth-place George Burns and Curtis Strange. Madison's Andy North finished 18 shots back at 287.

The LPGA victory provided Inkster with her second tour victory and second major championship of the season. She also became the first rookie in LPGA history to win two majors and the first golfer to perform the feat since Sandra Haynie captured two in 1974.

Inkster finished with a 279 total, 9 under par at the 6,131-yard par-72 St. George's Golf and Country Club. Okamoto, who started the day three shots back of thirdround leader Betsy King, carded a 66 - the low round of the tournament - and finished at 280.

On the PGA Senior Tour, Barber won for the fourth time in the last six tour tournaments, and the $30,000 firstplace prize solidified his position as the senior tour's second-leading money winner with $199,629, behind Don January's $207,635.

The tennis gods might have been favoring Bob Porter Sunday in the Greater Madison Tennis Association Closed Tournament.

"I was lucky," Porter said after his opponent in the finals, Tim Blissing, retired in the third set after sustaining leg and hand cramps and a twisted ankle to allow Porter to win the men's open singles championship at Nielsen Tennis Stadium.

Porter didn't win just on luck, though. He outlasted scrappy 16-yearold Craig Gundersen, 6-4, 6-4, in the semifinals, and came back in the finals after losing the first set, 6-2.

ning three of the first four games en route to taking the set, 6-2. Porter then toughened up while Blissing was forced to take several breaks to shake off his cramps, and Porter had little trouble taking the set, 6-0.

Porter had a 4-1 lead when Blissing decided to hang it up. He was also forced to withdraw from the doubles finals, giving the victory to Gundersen and Tim Wilcox.

"I had a lot of energy," Porter said. "IIe (Blissing) played great, he is a great volleyer. I guess I'm just lucky."

Which is exactly what Porter, a certified public accountant, said about his match with Gundersen, a serve-and-vollever who figures to play No. 1 singles at Madison Memorial High School next year.

The Western Senior Men's Hardcourt Championships also concluded Sunday at the John Powless Tennis Center, as Madison's Jim Jefferies beat Frank Juhasz of Glendale for the 45-and-over singles title.

Jefferies, who beat Juhasz in the finals last year in a third-set tiebreaker, won Sunday's rematch in easier fashion, 6-4, 6-2.

"I could see it in his eyes that he wouldn't last long," Porter said of Blissing, "I knew he wouldn't last, I thought he was going to retire after the turn at the third set."

Sunday's final was Blissing's third match of the day. Immediately after he won his semifinal singles match over Dave Irwin, 6-4, 6-1, he joined partner Bob Lange on the doubles court for a semifinal match, beating Bob Hummer and Rich Simonson in three sets.

Then, after about an hour's rest, Blissing was back on the court with Porter.

Blissing started out strong, win-

Gundersen did not give up after losing the first set and dropping the first game of the second set. After Porter took a 3-2 lead, Gundersen won two consecutive games to take a 4-3 lead. Porter quickly struck back to win the final two games, taking advantage of some unforced errors by Gundersen.

"He (Porter) deserved to win, he played good," Gundersen said. "I just have to learn to be more patient." With that, and a little luck, he just

Blunders by boaters create havoc on lakes

FOLLOWING A rash of complaints and near-mishaps, the Dane County Sheriff's Lake Safety Patrol will tighten the reins on careless water skiers who have plagued area boaters this summer.

"We're even getting complaints from conscientious skiers," said Sgt. Dave Branley. "Our crew already has issued 15 citations. That's costing the maverick showoffs $67 each."

Last Sunday, for example, a Middleton couple with two children aboard watched in horror as a speeding ski boat missed their boat anchored off the busy Warner Beach shore on Lake Mendota by a mere 15 feet. According to deputies Bob Pavey and Randy Burmeister, the female skier reportedly came close enough to the boat to drench its occupants.

"Thanks to some quick thinking," Pavey said. "witnesses got the boat number and reported it to the Sheriff's department."

The owner will receive a citation. Recently on Lake Monona's Squaw Bay, Branley arrested a wild water skier for going full bore between a small swimmers' raft and the shore.

"Luckily," said Brady Farrell, the raft's owner, "none of our children were swimming at the time."

"Things do get hairy in the bay," savs Farrell's neighbor, Leon (Dutch) Harrington.

The Middleton Beach area of Lake Mendota also is a boater's nightmare at times. The congestion is almost unbelievable. Swimmers, water skiers, sailboats and power boats, all trying to dodge each other, plus a bunch of floundering wind surfers and youngsters on flimsy plastic rafts.

While patrolling the area, Pavey and Burmeister found a young wouldbe water skier and his 15-year-old boat captain attempting to do the impossible. "I guess my 21/2-horsepower motor isn't big enough," said the pilot. "Nor is your 10-foot plastic boat."

said Burmeister. "It doesn't even have numbers. Why?"

"It's my dad's boat," was the reply. "I guess he forgot to buy some."

The youngster also didn't have an operator's certificate.

Persons 12 to 16 years old, who operate a motor boat unattended, must first pass a DNR boat safety course and carry the certificate. In this case, the youngster promised to take the course. But his father got hit with a hefty fine for permitting his unregistered boat to be used with a motor. Windsurfers also have been a problem.

"Windsurfing can be hazardous." said Dale Morey, DNR boat safety specialist. Although they don't look the part, they are boats and their owners must comply with the regulations on personal flotation devices.

"Since a number of surfers have nearly drowned when struck on the head by the rigging, we recommend they use the wearable type safety device."

Of the 80 citations issued by the patrol so far, many involve persons who either have improper or no safety devices aboard as required. By comparison, some 75 canoeists and other boaters checked on the Wisconsin River from Sauk City downstream to near Spring Green, were either wearing or had proper safety devices aboard when checked last Sunday.

FAMILY AFFAIR - A 7½-pound walleye, plus a "boatload" of medium-sized bluegills, furnished lots of excitement for Russ and Jill Adler, with their sons Jason and John, on Lake Wisconsin. Of the nine walleves caught, Jason, 8, took credit for hauling in the big one that hit a Shad Rap trolled in 12 feet of water off the Merrimac campground. The gills were taken in shallow water near the Okee bluff and along the railroad grade.

MONONA STRIKE - You have to think like a fish to discover their hideaway. The Westbys, John, Dick and Marvis, with Jeff and Jill Broeckel, all of McFarland, did just that recently by locating a big perch and bluegill hideaway in dense weeds on Lake Monona.

So far the group has had good luck using pieces of nightcrawlers fished just off bottom. "We haul in a lot of weeds," said John, "Plus a lot of fish."

The hot spot, located near the lake's east end, is doomed to disappear when the county's weed cutters reach the spot.

On Lake Mendota, Dennis Shaw of Waunakee ran into a good school of perch in 30 feet of water near the middle of Picnic Point while Jamie and Steve Pappas report finding perch willing to hit worms off Wakanda.

"I can't explain why I swam so poorly in the morning," he said.

Consolation final swimmers are ineligible for Olympic medals, regardless of their performance, but an emergency meeting of international swimming federation officials resulted in a ruling that Fahrner would be credited with the Olympic mark.

The world marks by Davis and the 400 freestyle relay team were the seventh and eighth world records set in the Games in seven different events.

Chris Cavanaugh of Mountain View, Calif., Mike Heath of Dallas, Matt Biondi of Moraga, Calif., and Gaines were pushed to their mark by a team from Australia and the crowd cheers of "USA . . . USA."

Gaines, the 100 freestyle gold medalist, extended a slight lead in the final leg, which he swam against Australian Mark Stockwell, the 100 freestyle silver medalist. The Australians, who set an Olympic mark of 3:19.94 in the prelims, settled for a silver in the final in 3:19.68. Sweden was far behind for the bronze. "To tell you the truth, I thought we'd walk away with this event," said Gaines, expressing surprise that the Australians made it close. "We have to face it that other countries are catching up with us in swimming, even though I think we have the best team ever assembled." Finishing second to Meagher -swimming's "Madame Butterfly" since setting world records at 100 and 200 meters in the event — was Jenna Johnson of La Habra, Calif., while Karin Seick of West Germany captured the bronze. John Mykkanen, at 17 the youngest male member of the U.S. swim team. was second in the final of the 400 freestyle, while Justin Lemberg of Australia won the bronze. Davis, silver medalist in the 100 breaststroke, broke his own world standard in the 200 by 1.24 seconds. Far behind were silver medalist Glenn Beringen of Australia and bronze medalist Etienne Dagon of Switzerland in 2:17.41. Anne Ottenbrite of Canada, gold medalist in the 200 breaststroke, won the silver medal in the 100, only .01 seconds ahead of bronze medalist Catherine Poirot of France.

women's 400 medley relay and 200 individual medley. And Michele Richardson of Miami was the top qualifier in the women's 800 freestyle.

West Germany's Michael Gross was an odds-on choice to earn his third gold medal in the 200 butterfly.

Meagher, a 19-year-old from Louisville, Ky., eclipsed the Olympic record in the women's 100 butterfly preliminaries on Thursday. The sophomore at California-Berkeley, who is the world record-holder in the event, had a time of 59.05 seconds, second to her world mark of 57.93.

The former Olympic mark of 1:00.13 was owned by East Germany's Kornelia Ender and was set in 1976.

While 25 members of the Meagher clan watched from the stands, Mary T. won the gold medal in the final in 59.26.

"This is only the beginning for the U.S.," said Meagher. "There are greater things to come. We are on our way to domination again."

DiCarlo, the American recordholder in the 400 freestyle, swam an Olympic record time of 3:51.23, but the mark lasted one race. West Germany's Thomas Fahrner clocked a 3:50.91 in consolation competition.

The previous 400 freestyle mark of 3:51.31 was owned by Vladmir Salnikov of the the Soviet Union.

Asked what he thought about his time being beaten in what amounted to an exhibition race, DiCarlo said, "You've got to swim morning and night.'

Fahrner, who was five seconds slower in the morning prelims, was somewhat consoled by the fact he back assignment. But it was at the expense of a returning letterman, and a popular senior, who eventually left the team.

At Wisconsin, he was confronted with a similar scenario with Jess Cole.

At each stop, and in each case, Wright handled a most difficult situation with diplomacy and composure, and that has marked his style.

There's no reason now to believe that he won't follow the same pattern in Green Bay. That brings us back to the equestrian competition, and one final question:

Who will Forrest Gregg ride out of a town on a horse? Whitehurst or Campbell?

That's like asking who do you like in basketball? Egypt or China?

Rangers give Muskies a rough sendoff

By Greg Sprout State Journal sports reporter

Burlington's Jim Cesario described it as one of those nights that makes it fun to come out to the ballpark.

Madison Manager Brad Fischer couldn't explain it, but went as far as saying it wasn't a whole lot of fun.

There was a simple reason for the contrasting accounts of Friday night's Midwest League game at Warner Park.

You see, Cesario drove in seven runs with a home run and a pair of doubles to guide the Rangers to a 12-8 victory over the Muskies, who begin a five-game Iowa road trip with holes in their confidence as well as in their Brad Fischer pitching staff.

The loss, coupled with Appleton's 7-2 triumph over Waterloo dropped the Muskies three games behind the Foxes in the race for first place in the Northern Division.

"No, I didn't expect to be the hero, but I think I'm starting to get my swing back," said Cesario, who has missed much of the season because of a broken wrist sustained 12 games into the Midwest League schedule.

Cesario, 22, the Rangers' designated hitter and a former University of New Orleans player, batted ninth in the Burlington order. He said that might explain some of his success.

"Like I say, I'm still coming back from the injury and I think putting me in the ninth spot let me see a few more fastballs and took the pressure off a little," Cesario said.

Cesario gave Burlington a 4-2 advantage with a two-run double to right-center in the fourth inning. The hit also meant an early exit for losing pitcher Darrel Akerfelds (11-4).

Akerfelds was the first of four ineffective Muskie pitchers used in the game. Bob Vantrease was the hardest hit, yielding three runs on two hits without retiring a hitter in the Ranger eighth.

"When you keep making pitching moves and nothing works, it makes you a little gun-shy, you don't know what to do, " Fischer said. "I guess vou could say I'm really discouraged with the walks. It's going to be a tough road trip with the way we've been playing.'

Burlington took a 9-3 lead into the bottom of the eighth, thanks in part to Cesario's two-run double in the top of the inning.

But Madison rallied for five runs in the eighth against Ranger reliever Kenny Rogers - two of the runs coming on Rob Nelson's double, which bounced off the first base bag. Dave Harman, who earned his seventh save, got Larry Beardman to fly out to right with the bases loaded to end the inning.

Cesario iced the victory for winning pitcher Jim Allison (2-5) with a three-run home run to right in the Burlington ninth.

Despite outhitting the Rangers, 11-9, Madison stranded a team-record 17 baserunners in the game.

The Muskies start a three-game series today against Waterloo.

LOS ANGELES - Add another

rout to the results sheet. Play taps over the remains of another sacrificial lamb.

Call the National Basketball Association and see if some of its players want to don wigs and compete against U.S. women in the Olympic Games.

Better yet, invite the Russian team to play these wonder women who have humiliated four opponents in six days.

Consider: 83-55 over Yugoslavia; 81-47 over Australia; 84-47 over South Korea; and, Friday night, 91-55 over China.

Where is the Soviet Union?

Alas, it is at home, but it is thinking of letting its team play a post-Olympic Games series against the United States. "Yes, talks are under way," said

Pat Summitt, the U.S. coach. "It could happen. But nothing has been #### settled. We have more important things to think about now. We have tunnel vision. We want that gold medal,"

The United States secured a berth in the gold-medal game Tuesday night with its victory over China. That assures the team of a silver medal, which it does not want, and it makes a game Sunday morning against Canada somewhat meaningless.

"But the Canadians will be tough against us," said Summitt. "Never have they been in awe of us. They cannot be intimidated like some of the teams we play."

China was the same way, but not for long.

Fourteen minutes into the game, the United States led, 25-18, and was struggling with its shooting and passing. The coach was miffed. The halftime talk was not so pleasant, but "not terrible," according to point

The second half was a breeze.

Packers rely on linebackers to fill the holes

By Tom Oates State Journal sports reporter

If there was a bright spot for the Green Bay Packers defense last year, it was the play of the linebackers.

John Anderson, Mike Douglass, George Cumby and Randy Scott were again the heart of the defense. However, that was somewhat of a dubious distinction in 1983.

Statistically, the Packer defense finished 28th and last in the National Football League. It was especially vulnerable against the run.

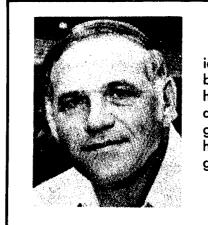

This season, the new Packer coaching staff is looking to the linebackers to help rectify that problem. Defensive changes will give the linebackers, especially on the inside, more responsibility in stopping the run.

In the biggest move, the inside linebackers will play two steps closer to the line of scrimmage. Last year, the Packer inside linebackers played five yards from the line of scrimmage.

"What we've done is move them up a little bit where they'll be closer to the action," linebacker coach Herb Paterra said this week. "They will have the ability to take on blockers and be able to stabilize blockers in that area between the line of scrimmage and maybe two to three yards beyond it. Our whole defense is based upon controlling the line of scrimmage and the linebackers have to do their part."

In order to do that, the entire front seven will be called upon to participate in a series of one-on-one collisions with the blockers that are designed to seal off the inside for the opponents' running game. That will force the inside linebackers to take on opposing guards one-on-one.

Paterra said the reason for moving them closer to the line of scrimmage was that 270-pound guards would no longer get a five-yard run at them before the collision takes place. A 240-pound linebacker can handle that kind of collision. But 240-pound linebackers who can also defend against the pass are hard to come by. "It gives them the opportunity to take on the run a little bit better," Paterra said. "They're more active taking on blockers now and reading combination blocks where last year they were five yards deep and always running to the flow".

Cumby and Scott have been productive players, but both are only

'Of course, you'd like an ideal linebacker. You'd like a big linebacker that can run like hell and can cover like hell, and one that take the two guards coming on him tough as hell. But the thing is you never get that total combination.' — Dick Modzelewski > about 6-foot and 220 pounds. With Rich Wingo, a former starter, and rookie John Dorsey, a big hitter so far in training camp, contending for jobs, this in one of the more unsettled areas on the team.

Paterra said he's not concerned about size, only strength and technique. If a player can meet the blocker head on, he can defeat him with a combination of strength and among the league's better outside leverage, according to Paterra.

"We want guys to become good technique football players," he said. "Our emphasis is more on strength, technique and leverage and not so much on size. Size is an intangible and we can't do anything about it. If you don't have it you don't have it."

Actually, the Packers do have it on the inside. Dorsey is 6-3, 235 pounds and, according to defensive coordinator Dick Modzelewski, fits his idea of an ideal strong side inside linebacker. He's big, strong, fast and mean. The problem is that he played collegiately at the University of Connecticut, a Division 1-AA school, so he is short on experience, especially in pass coverages.

"Of course, you'd like an ideal linebacker," Modzelewski said. "You'd like a big linebacker that can run like hell and can cover like hell, and one that take the two guards coming on him tough as hell. But the thing is you never get that total combination." Anderson and Douglass both rank linebackers although neither had an outstanding season in 1983. Some of that may have been due to the Packers' poor play up front.

Paterra calls both great athletes, although they play different styles. Anderson is steady and rarely makes a mistake; Douglass is a big-play man.

Scott, who missed 11 games with a knee injury last year, is a tough, smart competitor who has an ability to find his way through traffic to the ballcarrier.

Cumby led the team in tackles in 1982 and has an excellent preseason in 1983 before injuries hit. He played the entire season with nagging injuries and still ranked third on the team in tackles.

Wingo started after Scott was injured in the opener last year, then lost the starting spot when Scott returned for the final four games. Paterra said the new defense "has really helped Rich because this is his style of play, getting up where the action is."

Monona, Ridgewood swimmers earn titles

Monona Pool's swim team captured its first swimming competition title and Ridgewood Pool took its 13th consecutive swimming and diving combined title in the All-City Swim Meet, which concluded Saturday at Shorewood Hills Pool.

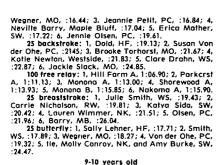

Monona was led by Christy Hrenak, who set two city and pool records in the girls' 13-14-year old division. Hrenak swam the 100-yard individual medley in one minute, 3.50 seconds and finished the 100-yard breastsroke in 1:11.57.

Hrenak was one of five double winners who set or tied records in Saturday's finals. Heidi Wencel of Parkcrest won both the 100-yard individual medley and the 100-yard breaststroke in the 15-17-year-old division in record time.

Jay Mortenson and Jeff Fletcher, both of the Maple Bluff team, each set two new marks, Mortenson in the 100 freestyle and the 100 butterfly in the 15-17-year-old category and Fletcher in the 100 backstroke and the 100 individual medley in the 13-14 vear-old division.

Tim Myers of the Hill Farm team was the other double winner, setting new marks in the 50 freestyle and 50 backstroke in the 11-12-year-old division.
