Howser famous for comebacks

By JERRY GREEN

The Detroit News

Which should be listed first in importance? Dick Howser's dignity, his bravery, his decency, his politeness or his honesty?

Howser possesses all of these qualities in a revolving profession. It is a profession in which most saddle themselves with selfishness and gushing egos.

Not Dick Howser. Not the man who patiently coaxed the Kansas City Royals to their world championship last October. Not the man who managed the American League in its winning All-Star Game last week.

"Excuse me." Howser said that night in the victor's clubhouse as he eased through a mob surrounding Lou Whitaker.

"I got to get going. You did great. Congratulations. I'll see you." Howser shook Lou's hand. Then he left the clubhouse.

Regarding it now, the scene was very touching. Howser had to get going. He had to get going to a hospital in Kansas City. Nobody realized that his head was throbbing with pain. He looked tired and gaunt. But he refused to complain.

He had a pain in his neck. The doctors would check him.

The Royals, who won the pennant and the World Series last year, were not packed with greatness. It is not true that the better team always wins. But it is true that the team with better character can win when the other team is superior.

The Royals of '85 were heroic survivors. They were down by 71/2 games halfway through the season, yet they rallied to win the division. They trailed the Blue Jays three games to one in the playoffs. They won the next three and the pennant.

The World Series could not be different. The Royals won it in their own fashion. They were down, three victories to one, to the St. Louis Cardinals. It was no problem. They won the next three and the world championship.

Dick Howser was calm through it all. It was as though he knew his team had this destiny. He didn't rant. He had faith.

"Some guys on this club are overachievers," he said as the World Series celebration roared outside his office in the KC clubhouse.

The Royals had survival instincts. They were an extension of their

Now it is more than a game. Dick Howser is fighting for his own survival - for his life. The probing doctors discovered that the pain in Howser's head and neck was caused by a brain tumor - a malignant

This is a courageous man. He was part of George Steinbrenner's coterie of managers. He managed and the New York Yankees won 103 games. They finished first. But they lost in the playoffs, much to the visible, face-twisting, boiled-over anger of George Steinbrenner.

After considerable reflection, Steinbrenner invited Howser to return the next year as manager. The invitation contained a series of concessions the manager would be required to accept. Howser mulled this for a couple of weeks, then became the only ex-manager of Steinbrenner's not to be fired. He told George to take the job and stuff it. Within the year, the Royals had hired him.

There was a Friday night last October when the man opened up. It was during the playoff series with Toronto. It was raining hard in Kansas City. But Howser stood outside and talked about his ballclub's perilous situation. The Royals had lost the first two games of the playoffs. Howser personally had lost each of the 11 games he had managed in post-season competition in New York and Kansas City.

"I've had times when I've felt sad," he said that night. "I remember when I was a coach with the Yankees and we beat Kansas City and Freddie Patek was sitting right over there in the dugout crying his eyes

"But mad? No. If I wanted to, I could sit down every night and find something to complain about. That's burnout. Good managers control the game. The ones who are average, or below average, they're in trouble. For me to sit around and complain doesn't do any good."

The Royals started back that night. They won a game. Later, one loss from elimination, they won the pennant. Down three games to one again, they won the World Series.

Dick Howser's in the hospital. He's waiting for the doctors to decide how to treat his affliction. He might be down 3-1. We're all rooting for him to make another comeback.

Lemond holds on to Tour lead

From Wire Services

American Greg Lemond is just four days away from creating Tour de France history after retaining the leader's yellow jersey in Wednesday's 179.5kilometer 19th stage from Villard de

Whether Lemond, who finished eighth, 2 minutes and 27 seconds behind stage winner Julian Gorospe of Spain, becomes the first American to win the oldest and most famous cycling race now depends entirely on Thursday's critical 20th stage, a 58-kilometer individual time trial in St. Etienne.

Teammate and five-time winner Bernard Hinault, the Breton badger, deprived of the leader's jersey in the first stage in the Alps by Lemond on Sunday, stands between Lemond and a historic Hinault, sixth in the stage in the same time as Lemond, is not finished yet and could clinch a record sixth tour victory if he beats the 26-year-old Californian by a significant enough margin Thursday. He is in second place, 2 minutes and 43 seconds behind Lemond, but is a wily and experienced time-trialist and could make up the deficit Thursday.

Boyd arrested again, this time for traffic fines

Hard-luck hurler Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, already suspended indefinitely by the Boston Red Sox, hospitalized for drug tests and facing charges from police for alleged assault, was arrested again while sitting beside his wife in the family car.

Boyd, 25, was scheduled today to face a judge in Wrentham District Court on an old, unpaid motor vehicle charge after Massachusett's state police arrested him Wednesday night as he and his wife were on their way to dinner and to see comedian Eddie Murphy, state police said.

Boyd, on a pass from the University of Massachusetts Medical Center where he is undergoing tests after a run-in with Chelsea police last week, was arrested for an old unpaid motor vehicle violation after his wife was stopped for speeding.

Red Sox spokesman Dick Bresciani said he didn't believe the arrest and court appearance would have further impact on the Boyd case.

Big Ten referee is confused about firings

Veteran basketball official Fred Jaspers says he's upset about the way the Big Ten Conference removed him from its officiating crew.

Jaspers, who lives in Waverly, Iowa, and worked Big Ten games for 15 years, was one of six officials the league replaced. He said he learned of the move three weeks ago, but never heard directly from the Big Ten's supervisor of officials, Bob Wortman.

"The timing of the whole thing is diculous," Jaspers said. "It doesn't take 31/2 months or whatever for someone to make the decision to use some-

Jaspers said he could not speculate on why he was dismissed.

"I've thought constantly about it since this took place," he said. "I know I feel I still have some class, more than the guy that fired me. I won't tell you anything more about what I was told or by who. I have too much class for that."

The other officials replaced were Gil Haggart of Chicago, Darwin Brown of Dayton, Terry Kuhl of Toledo, Art Willard of Jackson, Mich., and Paul Graham of Detroit.

Golfer is stunned by his two hole-in-ones

Tom Beck of Redding, Calif., says he was in shock after he shot a pair of holes-in-one at the Riverview Golf and Country Club Course.

The first ace came on the 208-yard No. 3 hole when his 4-iron shot landed about three feet in front of the pin and

The second ace came on the 138-yard No. 17 hole. His 8-iron shot flew straight at the flag, bounced about two feet in front of the hole and plopped into the cup.

"I wasn't surprised (at the first one).
It was pleasant," said Beck, who finished the 18-hole round last Thursday with an even-par 72.

But when the second one went in, "I just couldn't believe that it went into the hole," he said.

Jackson files countersuit against Racine man

A countersuit has been filed by baseball star Reggie Jackson against a Racine man who claims the California Angels player injured him during a scuffle that followed Jackson's refusal to sign an autograph.

The claim seeks payment of lawyers' fees plus $1 from Donald E. Weimer, of Racine, according to Jackson's attorney, Gerald Boyle.

The claim, filed in Milwaukee County Circuit Court, contends Weimer violated Jackson's right of privacy, harrassed him and embarrassed him during an incident May 3 at Major Goolsby's Tavern.

Weimer has sued Jackson for $150,000 in damages in a case that is pending before Circuit Judge Patricia S. Curley.

Nelson, team official file suits against airline

Milwaukee Bucks Coach Don Nelson and a trustee of the firm that owns the National Basketball Association team have filed suit against American Airlines, claiming Nelson and a former player were injured on a 1984 flight.

Nelson seeks $500,0000 in damages in one of the suits filed Wednesday in Milwaukee County Circuit Court.

Daniel F. Finnane, the trustee for Milwaukee Professional Sports and Services Inc., is seeking $650,000 in the other suit because the player, guard Mike Dunleavy, was paid for the full season to fulfill his contract, which specified he would receive full pay if he was disabled during the season.

Nelson contended he suffered "a permanent disability of a painfuil nature" when the plane stopped abruptly Dec. 1, 1984, as it taxied toward a gate after landing at Baltimore.

Nelson was violently thrown forward in his seat as a result of the sudden stop and injured his neck, right hip and leg, the suit said.

Sun Prairie's Piddington to retire from coaching

Long-time Sun Prairie baseball Coach Leon Piddington has decided to retire from teaching and coaching.

Piddington, 60, has coached at Sun Prairie for the past 30 years, and served as the head baseball coach for 25 years. His teams won more than 300 games and won the 1974 state title.

Piddington and his wife Donna plan to move to Scottsdale, Arizona.

NHL, players agree on contract

TORONTO (AP) — Representatives of the National Hockey League's 21-team owners and officials of the NHL Players Association ended a marathon bargaining session Thursday night with agreement in principle on a five-year contract.

The agreement was reached after four days of negotiating sessions, which intensified Thursday with sporadic meetings that lasted

The new pact doubles pensions for retired players and, as well, will provide a lump payment of $250,000 at age 55 to those who have played 450 or more games (51/2 seasons) in the NHL.

The players agreed to an expansion of first-round playoffs to bestof-seven from the current best-of-five. They also agreed to longer training camps - 27 days, up from 23.

3 from Virginia face drug charges

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Former University of Virginia tailback Barry Word, a New Orleans Saints' third-round draft pick, and Cavalier running back Howard Petty have been charged in an extensive cocaine investigation, federal prosecutors said Thursday.

Word and Petty, along with former placekicker Kenny Stadlin, were charged with conspiring to distribute less than one ounce of cocaine.

If convicted, they could be fined $250,000 and sentenced to up to 16 years in prison, according to U.S. attorney John Perry Alderman.

University president Robert M. O'Neil, a former University of Wisconsin System president, said athletes facing charges such as that against Petty must be suspended from the team until the case is resolved. A conviction would result in permanent removal from the athletic program.

Bias' parents criticize media leaks

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — The parents of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, who died of cocaine intoxication, Thursday criticized the plethora of media leaks from the grand jury and from law enforcement officers investigating the case.

Bias' father, James, said he is concerned that the intense media scrutiny his son's death has attracted could prejudice the outcome of the grand jury's investigation.

Jury deliberates in USFL-NFL trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A jury of five women and a man, which has spent 11 weeks listening to the war between the football leagues, began deliberating the United States Football League's $1.69 billion antitrust suit against the National Football League Thursday.

The jury, which officially got the case at 2:57 p.m. (CDT) after a 3½-hour charge by U.S. district judge Peter K. Leisure, adjourned for the day at 4:30 p.m.

The jury, none of its members football fans, must wade through nine charges brought by the 4-year-old USFL - six under the Sherman Antitrust Act and three that are known as "common law" charges. They contain a multitude of allegations that all add up to one basic charge - that the NFL, through a variety of actions, caused many of the problems of the fledgling league.

Commonwealth Games open

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) - The Commonwealth Games, plagued by a political boycott over South Africa, opened Thursday with a dazzling display of color and pageantry but with only 27 of the original 58 teams scheduled to compete.

In a dramatic last-minute development, Bermuda's team of eight athletes and five officials decided to stay in the games and defy an order to join the boycott by 31 other countries, colonies and territo-

The team was ordered to withdraw early Thursday by the Bermuda Olympic Association, its official sponsor, only two days after being assured by the same body that its place in the games was safe.

Mandlikova, Sabatini win matches

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) - Hana Mandlikova and Gabriela Sabatini, both extended to three sets, led Czechoslovakia and Argentina into the semifinals of the Federation Cup Thursday, while West Germany's top player, Steffi Graf, was knocked out of the tournament by a broken big toe.

Mandlikova and Helena Sukova, also carried to three sets, won their singles matches against Australia and moved Czechoslovakia, the second-seeded team, into a meeting with seventh-seeded Argenti-

Mandlikova, ranked fourth in the world, beat her regular doubles partner, Wendy Turnbull, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, after Sukova struggled past Anne Minter, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4. Sabatini, Argenatina's No. 1 player, struggled to defeat Petra Huber of Austria, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

Graf suffered her injury when a metal table holding a large umbrella blew over in high winds and landed on her right foot.

Drug testing cuts into practice time

By Tom Oates

Sports reporter

GREEN BAY - A misunderstanding concerning the National Football League's drug-testing agreement with its players delayed the Green Bay Packers' first full-scale practice of the season by more than 30 minutes Thursday morning.

The disagreement began when representatives of SmithKline Bio-Science Laboratories showed up in the locker room prior to practice ready to conduct drug tests. James Lofton, the team representative to the NFL players association, instructed his teammates not to submit urine samples because the Packers had also been tested for drugs at a minicamp in May.

However, Lofton later said he had not been informed of an agreement reached last Friday by the NFLPA and the league that allowed preseason testing by SmithKline, the company designated to administer the drug plan proposed recently by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

A ruling is not expected until mid-September, hence the necessity for Friday's agreement for SmithKline to go ahead with preseason testing.

One preseason drug test was allowed under the collective bargaining agreement between the owners and players even before Rozelle submitted his plan. However, those tests were administered by individual clubs rather than the NFL. Rozelle's plan takes testing out of the hands of

"(Rozelle's program) is still up in the air," Packers coach Forrest Gregg said, "but the basic principle of the test is in full swing, which means that at the beginning of training camp SmithKline Laboratories will handle the testing and they will test every team. # 'I think I'm used to the pressure'

Written for The State Journal

PLATTEVILLE — Things have been going OK, but I know the big stuff is ahead of me.

It's mostly mental now, picking up the system. I think I'm getting it down. I know I have to play real well in Saturday's scrimmage.

There is some pressure because a lot depends on how well I play in the scrimmage, and the opportunities I get against Dallas in London Aug. 3.

There's a lot more pressure on the younger guys to perform, a lot more than some guy who's all-pro and been here six years. At this level, I think pressure is to be expected. But I think I'm used to the pressure. It was the same way in college, a lot of pressure to preform well. I guess it goes with the territory.

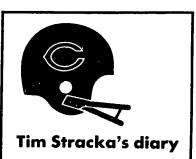

They haven't really told us how they're going to work the scrimmage. It will probably be some controlled kickoffs and punt return stuff, with a lot of down and yardage situations. I played some special teams in Cleveland. If I do that with the Bears, it might work to my advantage.

One thing I really haven't thought or worried much about is injuries. We had a goal-line scrimmage Wednesday morning and there were some injuries. But I don't really think about that kind of stuff.

Now that we're a little more than a week into camp, I'm really starting to meet a lot more guys. I'm hanging around mostly with the other tight ends, guys like Tim Wrightman, Don Kindt, Pat Dunsmore and Sylvester Byrd, a rookie from Kansas.

Last Saturday, we went with some wide receivers to the dog races in Du-won't all make it. Still, we want to see each other do well. It's like tight end

I still think it's too early to tell who's standing out. We've only really been here nine days. I'll know a lot more about how I stand after the scrimmage and the London trip.

As I'm starting to meet more people here, I think I'm getting used to all the personalities. They're all real professionals, real class people on and off the field. Like McMahon. I think he's a great guy and he's obviously a very talented guy. I'm used to all the attention everyone else gets. That's pretty much the way it was in Cleveland.

We had a big pig roast Wednesday night in some park here in Platteville. The thing was really nice, put on by a lot of Platteville people as sort of a show of appreciation that the Bears are here.

The food was great, and I had a chance to see a lot of people I knew from the area. It was a nice deal, the people were so hospitable. It was a nice break from camp.

Tim Stracka, a former Madison West and University of Wisconsin athlete, is writing of his experiences at the Chicago Bears' training camp in Platteville. The next installment of Stracka's diary will appear in Sunday's Wisconsin State Journal.

Bears hit by injuries

PLATTEVILLE Chicago Bears' offensive lineman Stefan Humphries has a broken toe and will be out for four weeks, while starting defensive lineman Dan Hampton may miss that much as well, team officials said Thursday.

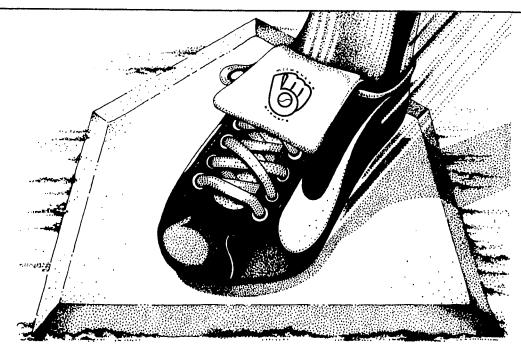

Humphries fractured a bone in a toe on his left foot in practice Wednesday, while Hampton was discharged from Lake Forest Hospital after spending the day in traction for recurring pain from a previous neck injury, team spokesman Bryan Harlan said.

A CAT scan will be performed Friday in Lake Forest to confirm the finding. Hampton, who is at home resting, is expected to miss two to

Meanwhile, free-agent running back Calvin Murray, who suffered partial paralysis during a contact drill Wednesday, appears to be alright, Bears' trainer Fred Caito said.

Meanwhile, second-round draft pick Vestee Jackson, a cornerback from Washington, agreed Wednesday to a series of four one-year contracts worth $870,000.

The Bears will play an intrasquad scrimmage Saturday at Pioneer Stadium. Tickets for the scrimmage, which begins at noon, are on sale at the UW-Platteville Student Center. For more information, call (608) 342-1161. Reserved tickets are $5, while general admission seats are $3.

Offerdahl signs with Dolphins

Associated Press

Linebacker John Offerdahl, a Fort Atkinson prep standout and the Miami Dolphins' top draft pick, ended a 141/2-day holdout Tuesday and reached terms just in time to accompany the National Football League team on a four-day trip to Georgia.

Offerdahl, a second-round pick, arrived in Miami late Tuesday and went directly to the afternoon practice. The Dolphins leave Wednesday morning for Suwanee, Ga., where they will practice with the Atlanta Falcons until Saturday.

The 6-foot-2, 232-pound Offerdahl is expected to start at inside linebacker and possibly call defensive assignments for the Dolphins this season. He was a second-team All-American last season at Western Michigan.

If the Detroit Lions don't offer first-round selection Chuck Long an acceptable contract, it's possible the former University of Iowa quarterback will sit out the 1986 season, said Jack Mills, Long's agent.

offer from the Lions, which he said was for $1.8 million over five years. The proposal included incentive clauses to pay Long more if the Lions made the playoffs.

Mills said he talked to Detroit general manager Russ Thomas about the contract Monday, but there was no progress.

see if a contract agreement can be that was no longer an option.

NFL notes

reached. Long reportedly is asking for $4 million over five years.

The New Orleans Saints withdrew their contract offer to third-round draft choice Barry Word on Tuesday, a few hours after the University of Virginia running back pleaded guilty to dealing in cocaine.

Word pleaded guilty to conspiring to distribute less than a kilogram (2.2 pounds) of cocaine, but he was never accused of having more than an ounce of the drug.

He is due for sentencing on Oct. 6, and the maximum penalty is 15 years in prison and a fine of $25,000.

The defending Super Bowl champions may have to be the Beerless Bears under a tentative agreement with the Chicago Park District that would keep the team at Soldier Field for this season's home games.

Unless the Chicago Bears and the Mills rejected the latest contract Park District, which owns the stadium, come up with an additional $25 million in liability coverage, beer sales at the field may have to be halted, Bears attorney Don Reuben said. Reuben said the $25 million would be needed to bring the total coverage to the $100 million required in the team's contract.

The Bears had threatened to leave Mills said Long could meet with the stadium unless the contractual Thomas soon, perhaps next week, to obligation was met, but Reuben said

Minnesota Vikings defensive tackle Keith Millard has been charged with disorderly conduct and making terroristic threats after an alleged verbal tirade with police in a hotel, authorities said Tuesday.

The incident occurred before dawn Sunday when police Sgt. Scott Reinhardt responded to a domestic call at the Radisson South Hotel, according to an offense report filed Monday in Bloomington, Minn.

Millard was released on $1,000 bond, pending an Aug. 15 court appearance.

Veteran offensive tackle Bill Bain, who was a second-round draft pick of the Green Bay Packers in 1975, has left the Kansas City Chiefs camp and has decided to retire, according to Chiefs officials.

Bain, who will turn 34 on Aug. 9, was in his 11th NFL season. He played the last seven seasons with the Los Angeles Rams, and went to the Pro Bowl in 1984.

INTER TO BEAR LAKE CAMPGROUND

If You Haven't—Here's What Your Family is Missing: Camping in the shade of one hundred-year-old pine trees, some are over 100 feet high and seven feet in circumference. The camping area is level with well-drain-dest soil. All sites have water and electricity. There is a large recreation room, modern toilet facilities, hot showers groceries, treats to beet the heat, pizza, sand-wiches, ice, firewood, laundromat and fresh Hol-N-One donuts. There is 500 feet of shallow sand beach on Bear Lake, which is 200 acres in size. Bring your fishpole and your water skis. Take pictures of the black squirrels that are in this forest. Catholic Mass on the grounds.
