Despite verdict, NFL didn't win

AFTER 49 days of testimony and 31 hours of deliberation, a six-person jury found 27 out of 28 National Football League teams guilty of conspiracy to monopolize football. The Los Angeles Raiders were not named in the lawsuit. The jury did not accept the USFL's charges of restraint of trade and monopoly in television, and cleared television of all charges of monopoly.

The jury found that all contracts were negotiated individually, and prior to the birth of the USFL. Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who had been named an individual defendant, was found innocent of conspiracy charges. The jury awarded the USFL one dollar in damages.

On the surface, it seems that nearly everyone believes that the verdict in total is a victory for the NFL. It has been largely reported that way on television last night. However, it may not be as clear and as simple as all that.

According to juror Miriam Sanchez, there was a hung jury at 3 and 3, a jury that fought and screamed over this case and the verdict. and a jury that was ultimately determined to compromise to avoid a hung jury and a retrial.

Howard

Cosell

Sanchez also said openly - and this is key - that they chose to set damages at one dollar because they were unsure as to how high the damages should be, and they wanted Judge Peter K. Leisure to set the damages for them. Judge Leisure has a right to do this, but it remains to be seen if he will.

Meanwhile, it may behoove the public to keep Sanchez's statement in mind, every time they hear that this case was a total victory for the NFL, based on the jury damage award.

What does this decision mean to the average fan? Judge Leisure will not write his final opinion until September. Assuming that he stands on the one dollar damages (to be trebeled to $3), here's what you can expect.

• The USFL will perish.

• New York will not have a football team in the forseeable future. • The NFL will probably get an anti-trust exemption from the Congress of the United States.

• Anti-trust exemption will probably lead to pay television for at least some, if not all, NFL telecasts because declining television pro football revenues will force lower rights payments by the networks to the NFL.

• Player salaries will doubtless decline and union strength and influence will decline along with it.

How else will it affect you? The same way it will affect me. Competition in an open market in this country produces excellence, excitement, color, variety, stars and superstars. It gives a vibrancy to everything, and football is no different.

I remember - don't you - the excitement of the fledgling AFL, of David A. Sonny Werblin buying the dying Titans and turning them into the New York Jets. I remember the excitement of watching Al Davis as Commissioner of the AFL fighting to keep the league alive, and I remember Werblin's wisdom and savvy in negotiating a contract with NBC Sports to get the AFL on TV, a contract they needed - as does the USFL - to survive.

I remember Joe Namath who set a city and a country on fire, and Matt Snell, and Emerson Boozer, and Verlon Biggs, George Sauer, Jr., and Don Maynard, do you? And Otis Taylor, and Bobby Bell and Buck Buchanan. Back then the NFL tried to treat them the way they now treat the USFL, treat players like Jim Kelly, Doug Flutie, even subtley, Herschel Walker.

Imagine, then, if the NFL had gotten away with it with the AFL? What entertainment, what glorious performances, what characters we might have missed, so that the NFL could have its way. And what about the cities? What about Baltimore, Memphis, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Phoenix, and Oakland? The record shows that the NFL never awards an expansion franchise unless there is a competing league - the only exception is New Orleans.

Personally I have been deeply affected by this case. The only stake I had in it didn't relate to who won or lost. It related to what I believe is right, to what I believe about open competition in a free market place, and to what I believe to be the obligations of the television industry, an industry that I love despite its faults. It was not easy for me to take the witness stand and contradict a man with whom I have spent a professional lifetime, one who made my career, a brilliant head of ABC Sports. who changed the face of sports television: Roone Arledge. But I had to do it in order to live with myself.

UW adds three to women's cage staff

The University of Wisconsin women's basketball team has added two assistant coaches and a graduate assistant to the staff of new head Coach Mary Mur phy.

The new assistant coaches are: Mary Peckham, an assistant coach at North Carolina; and Ruth Kuzmanic, a former assistant coach at Northern Illinois.

Fort Atkinson's Offerdahl finally signs with Dolphins

Rookie John Offerdahl felt guilty during his two-week-plus holdout from Miami Dolphins training camp, but he said "that's part of the game."

The game he was talking about wasn't football. It was contract negotiations.

Offerdahl, the Dolphins' top draft pick in the second round, apparently won that game as time was running out. The inside linebacker who grew up in Fort Atkinson and recently graduated from Western Michigan signed a multi-year contract with the Dolphins on Tuesday, just in time to join the team on its four-day trip to Suwanee, Ga., to practice against the Atlanta Falcons.

Offerdahl refused to reveal his salary, signing bonus or even the length of his contract.

The Pacers compiled a 48-116 record during Irvine's two years as head coach. The Pacers finished 22-60 in his first season - the worst in the NBA and 26-56 last season.

Two Maryland players suspended indefinitely

Two University of Maryland basketball players believed to have been with All-American Len Bias the morning he died of cocaine intoxication have been suspended from the team, Chancellor John B. Slaughter said this morning at a press conference.

Although Terry Long and David Gregg are suspended indefinitely, they will retain their athletic scholarships, Slaughter said.

"I believe that indefinite suspension form the basketball team is necessary, given the seriousness of the crime for which these two students have been indicted," Slaughter said.

Slaughter said that if the players are found innocent and are in good academic standing, they will be eligible for reinstatement to the team.

Even if acquitted, the two still might face disciplinary action by a campus judicial review board for any violations mination about their futures will be made at that time, he said.

Gregg, a sophomore, and Long, a senior, were indicted for possession of co-caine and obstruction of justice for allegedly removing evidence from the dormitory room where Bias collapsed June 19, just two days after being drafted by the NBA champion Boston Celtics.

Versace rips Bradley for not fighting NCAA

Bradley University should have fought a National Collegiate Athletic Association investigation that led to the school's basketball program being put on probation, lame-duck Coach Dick Versace says.

"If we had had the courage to stand up to the NCAA like we should have, our kids wouldn't be in the situation they are," Versace was quoted as saying in today's Peoria Journal Star.

"The school should have said, 'We're not going to take that. We've got a good coach, a good program; we're as clean as any school you can toothcomb.' But that wasn't the case," said Versace, who was accused by the NCAA of unethical behavior for changing his story about his role in recruiting violations.

Versace, 44, signed a one-year con-tract July 14 — the same day the NCAA's sanctions were announced and was told it would be his last.

"I didn't deserve a one-year contract," Versace said in his first public comments since the sanctions and his contract-signing.

"I deserved a five-year contract and a pat on the back," he said, referring to Bradley's 32-3 record and Missouri Valley Conference title last season, the best in the private school's basketball history.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions barred Bradley's basketball team from post-season play, and its coaches from off-campus recruiting, for the coming season. The basketball program also was placed on probation for two years.

The committee's report said Bradley violated rules in recruiting one student athlete by giving him or his family use of a car, other transportation, meals and other benefits. It singled out Versace for what it termed his unethical conduct.

"The NCAA is a cartel and clearly demonstrated that it lacks integrity,' Versace said. "It does not deal with any level of fairness. It tricks people and uses pressure tactics.

"You have to stand up to the Philistines, and if the Philistines are the NCAA, then stand up to them." Versace has interviewed with Detroit Pistons coach Chuck Daly for a possible assistant coach's job.

Howser begins outpatient treatment

Outpatient radiation treatments began Tuesday for Kansas City Royals Manager Dick Howser, who remains upbeat about his battle against brain cancer, a team spokesman said.

Doctors plan to give Howser five radiation treatments a week for the next five weeks, Dean Vogelaar, the team's vice president for public relations. said Tuesday.

"He's really himself, he's got his sense of humor," said Vogelaar, who is among a few team officials to visit with Howser since the operation last Tuesday. "Dick gets a little bit tired, but here's a man who had major surgery a week ago. His spirit is outstanding. He has a very positive attitude - that's Dick Howser."

It was also equally painful to watch colleagues be afraid to testify about television and the NFL because they were afraid for their jobs, afraid to tell the truth. I had hoped for something better from some of them, at least. I still believe that the jury decision regarding television stemmed in part from the failure of television people to come forward and tell it like it is.

Because of the damages issue we may be going into overtime in this case. The USFL's attorney says he is going to pursue that issue, and very probably they USFL will appeal. Meanwhile, you really have to sit back and marvel at the moral poverty of people who are convicted of conspiracy to monopolize football in federal court, and who respond publicly with chortles, and cries of victory.

Myerson emphasized in his closing argument to the jury.

But the jury eliminated the television question when it found that the market for football goes beyond just ABC, CBS and NBC into cable television, specifically ESPN. In effect, that said that the NFL had not shut off the newer league from all access to television.

It also appeared to be saying in dismissing eight of the nine counts against the NFL that it could not substantiate most of the USFL's case.

The heart of that case was the "Porter Presentation," a study by Harvard Business School professor Michael Porter entitled, "How to Conquer the USFL." It was presented to 65 NFL executives in February 1984. The NFL argued that the study wasn't authorized by the league, was never implemented and that most of its recommendations were nonsense. The reaction of the two sides was predictable.

"The USFL shot themselves in the foot," said NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, who was also found personally not liable in the case. "I tried to explain during the trial that I viewed the NFL as a natural monopoly and. if I understand the attorneys, they

(the jury) viewed it that way, too."

'Justice is wonderful," said Frank Rothman, who with NFL co-counsel Robert Fiske was sometimes criticized for his quiet demeanor in the face of Myerson's theatrics. "The jury was very, very astute. They saw through a case built on nothing but smoke and not very good smoke at that. The $1 is an insult to the USFL."

"It's difficult to reconcile the finding that the NFL acted in a monopolistic, predatory fashion, but that we weren't damaged except to the extent of $1," Usher said.

"They have given a monopolist who has been proven to be a monopolist a license to continue being a monopolist," Myerson said.

There were, however, USFL people who remained upbeat.

Donald Trump, owner of the New Jersey Generals and the man the NFL portrayed as the architect of the fall switch and the lawsuit, said the verdict was "a great moral victory."

"Now, with the confusion and what seems to be a hung jury, we expect to be a total victory," Trump said in a statement read over the phone by his secretary.

And Tony Cunningham, co-owner

of the Tampa Bay Bandits, said:

"Based on the information we heard from a juror, the jury felt the NFL was guilty of violating the antitrust laws of the United States."

But the chances of that one juror overturning the case seemed about as remote as the USFL's chances for long-term survival.

"If you had a new trial every time a juror came back and said he was misunderstood," Fiske said, "you'd be having a new trial on almost every one that's held."

in I.M.S. Division of the Chicago-to-Mackinac race which concluded Tuesdav.

Swimming

They're just 'havin' fun' at city swimming meet

By Kevin Harmon

Sports reporter

Nick Gansner is 11. Stephanie Morey is 9. Even at that age, they may well be two of the finest swimmers in the city.

Despite their awards and top finishes in in recent competitions, swimming means "havin' fun."

Morey, who is in her third season for the Maple Bluff team, and Gansner, swimming in his fourth season for Shorewood, are among the leaders for their teams at the 19th City Swimming Championships, which began Thursday at the Monona Pool.

Gansner, a sixth-grader at Van Hise Middle School, is coming off a banner performance at the Badger State Games in June. He won gold medals in the 50-meter breastroke and the butterfly. He also won a silver medal in the butterfly.

Nick, the oldest of the three Gansner boys, all of whom are swimmers. has been swimming since age 7.

"Swimming is lot of fun," he said. "Since you go up against diffrent people most of the time it's never boring."

Morey, a fifth-grader at Edgewood Middle School, won the 9-10 year-old girls' 50-meter freestyle event in Thursday's preliminary heats. Last week, she won several freestyle events and finished second in breastroke events at a meet in Milwaukee.

"Stephanie is an excellent swimmer for someone her age," said Morey's coach, Bruce Craig. "She works hard on making herself better. She's very talented."

Gansner and Morey are just two of the approximately 1,100 swimmers ranging in age from 8 to 18 who will compete this weekend.

Qualifying heats continue today with finals on Saturday.
