Yankees first after victory over Brewers

NEW YORK (AP) - When New York Yankee first baseman Don Mattingly is hot, it doesn't matter who is pitching to him.

Mattingly showed Monday night that he is swinging the bat pretty

He ate up a Teddy Higuera fastball for a two-run home run in the seventh inning to give New York a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers and move the Yankees back into sole possession of first place in the American League East Division.

"If I'm going bad he eats me up," Mattingly said of the Brewer left-hander. "If I'm swinging real good, I've got a good chance against

Milwaukee manager Tom Trebelhorn rould rather have walked Mattingly than give him a decent pitch to

"We just wanted to keep the ball away from Mattingly, if we lost him, we lost him," Trebelhorn said. "We just didn't do that. Teddy got a pitch inside, and he hit it out.

"When we hold them to three, we kind of like our chances."

New York led the division for 48 days before slipping into second June 19, but now lead the Detroit Tigers by a half game and the Boston Red Sox, winners of 12 in a row, by 1½. Detroit was idle Monday.

The defeat was the third in a row for the fourth-place Brewers and dropped them 6½ games behind the

"It's nice to be on top," said Mattingly, whose 10th home run scored Luis Aguayo, who opened the seventh with a single.

Mattingly's home run was also his first this season off a left-handed pitcher.

John Candelaria (11-6) pitched a three-hitter, walking one and striking out six, although his lone walk scored Candelaria's complete game was his sixth, accounting for more than half of the Yankees' 11 this season. He allowed a single by Paul Molitor in the sixth and a double by Jeffrey Leonard in the ninth.

"Tonight was an important win, We came from behind and we didn't have to go to out to the pen like we've had to," Yankee manager Lou Pinella

The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the first when Rickey Henderson walked, stole second on a failed pickoff play, continued to third on a throwing error by first baseman Greg Brock and scored on Mattingly's single.

Brock walked with one out in the second and Meyer sent a 1-1 pitch to left to put Milwaukee ahead.

At least 3,000 fans paid $100 each to see the Chicago Cubs work out and take batting practice under the six banks of lights at Wrigley Field.

The lights at Wrigley are a hit

CHICAGO - The lights went on Monday night in Wrigley Field in a burst of cheers, as the Chicago Cubs gave their fans a preview of the first night baseball game in the 74-year-old

Six towering banks of floodlights set the stage for the historic event Aug. 8 as the Cubs made their first batting practice under the lights a festive affair, beginning with an autograph session on the field at 6 p.m.

The field gradually cleared about half an hour before sunset, and the crowd of about 3,000 fans rose to join in the National Anthem as the lights were turned on at 7:45 p.m., illuminating the aging ballpark for the first time in its history. ABC-TV, which was showing two Monday night games, cut away from their telecasts to show portions of the Wrigley fanfare.

A series of 20 switches were thrown. The lights grew brighter as the crowd sang. They ended the anthem in a burst of applause as all six towering banks of floodlights glowed in left field and right field.

'After it got dark, it was OK. We can play here.

NL umpire-in-chief Ed Vargo

"It's a marvelous change," said former Cub star Ernie Banks, who laughed and added: "Let's play three! A daytime double-header and a night game."

Players saved their reaction until after a home-run contest and the team workout that "I saw it real well," said the Cubs' Andre Dawson, who had the distinction of hitting the first nighttime home run, a blast to the bleachers in left-center during the contest.

"It seemed a little dark in the outfield," said Dawson, who admitted he preferred day baseball. "But maybe when it gets a little darker, it will be different in the field."

Some of his teammates had trouble seeing

"I was told by my players that there is a particular problem in the left-field corner," manager Don Zimmer said. "Apparently the lights cover the left-field fence and not that part of the outfield where players have to go almost out of sight."

Jimmy Piersall, the Cubs' outfield instructor, agreed. "They might want to give us more light down the left- and right-field lines, but that's a problem in just about every ballpark."

Third baseman Vance Law said he had trouble seeing the ball.

"When I was shagging flies down the leftfield line, I definitely had problems," Law said. "I only saw half the ball."

Among those watching were National League president Bart Giamatti and Ed Vargo, the league's umpire-in-chief.

"It was a little hard to see at first because of the time of day. They need to make some adjustments," Vargo told Giamatti. "There was some glare at third base, but after it got dark, it was OK. We can play here."

On Monday, the Packers gained the services of defensive end Robert Brown, who signed a two-year con-

The 6-foot-2, 267-pounder ended a three-day holdout. Brown, a six-year veteran, started the last two seasons and has played in 88 consecutive games for the Packers. Brown was reportedly paid $155,000 last season. Details of his new contract were not revealed.

I'm pretty satisfied. I think it's a pretty fair deal," Brown said. "I thought I had a good year last year. I really wasn't paying that much attention to the other guys (holdouts). I just wanted to get my contract worked out.'

Brown's signing leaves six veterans - wide receivers Walter Stanley and Phil Epps, linebacker Brian Noble, guards Rich Moran and Ron Hallstrom and center Mark Cannon and top draft choice Sterling Sharpe unsigned and out of camp.

Hallstrom, though, issued a statement through the team saying he was confident things would be resolved.

■ Under the lights: The Packers will have a rare evening practice at Lambeau Field at 7:15 p.m. Wednes day. They will have another night workout a week later. Both will be open to the public.

A team spokesman said Infante has two reasons for holding evening practices. He believes it will be a welcome break in the camp routine for the players and he wants to give fans who work during the day a chance to view camp workouts.

U.S., New Zealand to sail one-on-one

NEW YORK (AP) - A judge on Monday ordered the feuding San Diego Yacht Club and a New Zealand challenger to settle the battle for the America's Cup on the seas with a September race instead of in the courts.

The ruling also cleared the way for the San Diego club to use its controversial two-hulled catamaran in defense of the title it reclaimed for the United States in 1987.

"We're very pleased because this gives certainty to the event," said Tom Ehman, executive vice president of Sail America, the organization managing the defense for the yacht club. "As the judge said at the end of her decision, 'Let's get the sailors back on the water.' That's the bottom

Michael Fay, chairman of the New Zealand challenge, still maintained that the Americans have an unfair advantage sailing their catamaran against his single-hull sloop.

"Monohulls don't beat multihulls on the water but that's what we're going to go out to try to do," Fay said.

State Supreme Court Justice Carmen B. Ciparick ordered the two clubs to begin racing Sept. 19 off the coast of San Diego.

She also denied the request of an English yacht club to join the race, and rejected the New Zealanders' petition to hold the San Diego club in contempt of court.

"The vision that . . . the donors sought to perpetuate over the years was that of an international race on a grand scale among boats on the seas, and not a land-bound battle among clever lawyers in the courthouse." Ciparick said.

Despite the prospect of facing the catamaran, a smaller boat with greater maneuverability and stability, a spokesman for the Mercury Bay Boating Club of Auckland, New Zealand, said they were ready to race. "The Cup has always involved sailing challenges between similar boats, but the judge has ordered us to sail, and we are ready to sail, mismatch or not," Peter Debreceny of Mercury Bay said.

Debreceny, reached in San Diego, added: "If it's a mismatch, it will destroy the future of the America's

Tom Mitchell, a spokesman for the Sail America group which is sponsoring the San Diego entry, called the decision a victory for the American defenders and said his group is ready

Mercury Bay disregarded the America's Cup custom of sailing 12-meter yachts, vessels about 45 feet long at the water line. The club asked, instead, to use boats about 90 feet at the water line and insisted San Diego accept its challenge sooner than 1991 - the next date under the traditional formula of racing every four years.

Meanwhile, the San Diego club said it would respond to the New Zealand challenge by racing in its newly developed catamaran.

Bucks sign CBA guard Mark Davis

MILWAUKEE (AP) - The Milwaukee Bucks have signed 6-foot-5 free agent guard Mark Davis to a one-year contract.

Davis, who played collegiately at Old Dominion University, was the second-leading scorer in the Continental Basketball Association last season, averaging 24.1 points for the La Crosse Catbirds.

Davis, who was drafted in the fourth round by the Cleveland Cavaliers in 1985, had 10 games over 30 points last season for La Crosse.

He will participate along with rookies and other free agents in the Bucks minicamp beginning Saturday at the Cousins Center.

Also attending the camp will be Tito Horford, Milwaukee's secondround draft choice, and Auburn forward Mike Jones, the Bucks' thirdround pick.

After eight practices, the Bucks' summer camp team will travel to Charlotte, N.C., to play similar teams representing the Charlotte Hornets, Miami Heat and Atlanta Hawks.

club, Waterflight. Members range from age 12 to 70, but Schneider said the average member is between 30 and 40, split down the middle betweeen men and women. Membership is $125 and includes unlimited use of equipment.

Maybe Waterflight's best advertising is its location. Vilas Beach is crowded in the summer and many people are curious.

That's what happened to Jeff Hopper, 32, a member of Waterflight.

"I drove by two years ago and now I'm hooked," he said.
