ishing Report

LAKE MENDOTA — Some nice walleyes, though most under the legal size limit, have been hitting along Governor's Island, Maple Bluff and Second Point. Perch also continue to bite on helgeramites and Woolly Worms, though in recent weeks. Some nice bluegills are showing up on weedlines at Second Point, near the Four parts of the lake. Smallmouth bass are being taken on leeches 14-20 feet down off most of the bars.

LAKE MONONA -- Bluegill action continues to be strong. Most are being found suspended 12-15 feet down in 20-35 feet in most parts of the lake. Olbrich and Hudson parks have been two of the hot spots for bluegills. Anglers who have been drifting and using purple or red Woolly Worms tipped with wax worms or spikes are having the most success. LAKE WAUBESA — Walleyes are being taken on most of the bars by anglers using slip bobbers and leeches. Bluegill and crappie action is also good while drifting. Weedlines in water 8-12 feet are Mepps have been good for luring stripers while drifting or trolling about 15 feet down. Walleye ac-tion has been fair off Colladay Point by the dropoff. White bass, crapples and northerns have been taken, with the Rattletrap lure one of the more effective baits. Anglers using minnows on a Lindy Rig have been landing crappies and walleyes. In the Yahara River, catfish and bullheads have been hitting on nightcrawlers and shiners in early evenings.

WISCONSIN RIVER -Prairie du Sac smallmouth bass, walleyes and catfish have provided anglers the most action. Anglers near Spring Green have been catching good numbers of catfish

Wendt edges Schill

OREGON — Andy Wendt held off Al Schill and won the 30-lap late model feature race at Madison International Speedway Friday night.

Wendt jumped to the lead on the fourth lap after starting on the outside of the second row. Schill, meanwhile, moved into second on the 26th lap after starting in the fourth row.

Schill closed on Wendt their two cars even touched on lap 28. But Wendt kept Schill be-win the race, which was his first ever late model victory at Madison International Speedway. Doug Herbst finished third, John Olson finished fourth and Jerry Wood finished fifth. (Complete results in Score-

OUR OPINION

Trust works both ways

President Bush has begun his search for the comeback trail in the political brush of Wisconsin, reminding voters that it's still a dangerous world out there and warning them against entrusting their security to a governor whose notion of "foreign affairs" is resolving a border dispute with Missouri.

At one level, Bush's strategy as unveiled during Monday's visit to Appleton and Neenah was effective. In a presidential campaign that has treated foreign affairs like a four-letter word, voters tend to forget that America's prosperity begins with protecting and furthering U.S. interests abroad. Full-blown crises and subtle political trends in our shrinking world inevitably help to shape American industrial, farm, environmental, energy, labor and human-rights policies.

"People need to know the man (who) answers the phone has the experience, the seasoning to do the right thing. I think I have proven I am the right man," Bush told a crowd in Neenah.

There is no denying that Bush has a long and generally successful record in foreign affairs. He martialed the coalition that drove Saddam Hussein's armies from Kuwait, protected U.S. interests by removing a drug-running dictator in Panama, concluded a historic arms-control treaty with the former Soviet Union, restarted peace talks in the Middle East, and has guided American efforts to assist Eastern Europe's transformation from communism to democracy.

There is also no denying that by playing the foreign-policy card, Bush invites criticism from his Democratic opponent, much of it justified.

As Bush spoke in Wisconsin, the country was being reminded of the dangerous and unfinished business in Iraq. With Saddam still in power and playing a shell game with United Nations' arms inspectors, Washington is increasing military pressure on Baghdad. A battery of Patriot missiles has been sent to Kuwait and a third aircraft carrier is steaming toward the Middle East.

Clinton and his running mate, U.S. Sen. Albert Gore Jr., supported the war in the Persian Gulf, so they're on firm ground if they ask Bush what many Americans also want to know: Why wasn't Saddam finished off in the spring of 1991, when allied forces were within range of Baghdad? Why are the Kurds still suffering under Iraq's tyranny? Why is any of this still a problem?

Bush also reopened for campaign inspection his dealings with China, where the hard-line regime killed and imprisoned pro-democracy demonstrators in Tiananmen Square. Bush, who served a stint as ambassador to China and professes affection for her people, needs to explain again why he favors trade bonuses over sanctions that might get the attention of Beijing's gerontocracy.

American policies in the war-torn republics that once made up Yugoslavia. . . U.S. dealings with other nations on environmental issues. . . those and other issues will also be a part of the presidential debate.

Bush used the word "trust" 19 times in his morning speech in Michigan and 25 times during his afternoon visit to Wisconsin in an effort to frame the campaign in his own terms. But just as Clinton needs to persuade the nation that the "change" he promises is change for the better, Bush must prove that he realizes trust is a two-way street.

" THIS ONE'S FROM WHEN BUSH RAISED TAXES ..... THAT ONE'S FROM JERRY BROWN'S CONVENTION SPEECH ..... THIS ONE'S FROM WHEN PEROT PULLED OUT .........."

Dems' mall strategy pretty thin

Picture Bill Clinton prowling through big shopping malls grubbing for votes. Instead of leaning forlornly on an industrial plant gate, waiting at dawn for the last three workers who haven't been laid off, the Democratic nominee and his grits sidekick may infiltrate shoppers ready to storm a department store at the 10 a.m. opening.

Can you see it? Clinton, his steelwool hair crackling with tension, cajoles shoppers in his whiskey-tenor voice to vote for the Baby-Boomer twins.

Gore, Albert Tipper at his side, jogs through the mall looking for music stores selling CDs and cassettes. Anyone who buys a blue-language recording would be subject to tut-tuts from the Gores, doubling as morality po-

DRISCOLL

I exaggerate. The Gores would not be so tactless. The Democrats, though, claim their new election strategy is to target America's "mall people" instead of inner cities and the traditional special interests. The high-risk goal: Loosen the GOP stranglehold on suburban voters.

Desperate Democrats will eschew other strategies in favor of undercutting Republicans on their own turf. In one sense, the strategy seems sound. This recession has pummeled white-collar

Driscoll is an editorial writer and columnist for the Sun-Sentinel of Fort workers in the suburbs harder than ever before. Many are exceedingly annoyed with George Bush and perhaps receptive to another candidate's song and dance.

Mall strategy, though, seems a little thin and more than slightly confused. A Democratic consultant, Ray Strother, mistakenly equates suburbanites with those who live where shopping malls are considered an area's unofficial center.

This doesn't mesh with the way living patterns have evolved. Millions of Americans live in non-places where a mall forms a weak unifying institution, but the people aren't really suburbanites. There's no "urb," no large central city with which they identify even slightly.

Aside from a blurred notion of who suburbanites are, Democrats are stumbling into the danger of self-destructing, again, if they seem to jilt loyalists who have traditionally voted for their party: The poor, blacks, labor, city dwellers.

Since 1980, some of these groups, notably white workers wearing blue collars, have been considerably less loyal to the Democrats, and voted in large numbers for Ronald Reagan and Bush. Nonetheless, the stubborn tradition remains, and many old-line Democrats in those groups will be insulted and incensed if they conclude their votes are taken for granted.

Clinton and Gore revere "change" the word if not the reality - like a charismatic new religion, but their battlefield strategy aims at the last war. In 1988, maybe the Democrats should have gone after what Clinton said, early in that campaign, was the 20 percent of undecided voters. An all-out courting of the 20 percent, though, would have left little time to send roses to the 40 percent socalled "sure thing" Democratic voters, let alone squire them to the prom.

This year, instead of a 20 percent undecided vote, the pollsters are finding more than 40 percent of the electorate who are flat-out not sure, or whose leanings toward a candidate are so weak as to be almost imperceptible.

Some undecideds will be found at regional shopping malls, but others are among the blue- and pink-collar workers whose modest incomes limit them to shopping at discount stores in small strip malls. Black communities, too, have their share of undecideds. In fact, no group can be counted on in this time of feeble party structures to be automatically supportive of the Democrats.

If the Democrats neglect their core constituency in favor of a mall strategy, they could be welcoming defeat into the party's parlor, again. If instead they would hang on grimly to most of their traditional core of Democratic voters. and not spurn them entirely for the attractive but perhaps unreachable middle-class habitues of the malls, the Democrats could manage a win. It's a matter of skillful balance: Court the mall denizens but don't forget old friends.

That's free advice and worth the price, but still: The last-war syndrome should be familiar to Democrats. For years, they have campaigned for president as if it was 1936 or, at the latest, 1960. Those days of strong blue-collar loyalty and the mesmerizing glamor of a larger-than-life candidate have evaporated like the Dust Bowl and Camelot.

Now the donkeys have figured out how to win the 1988 election, and are all the while.

The 25th political Games The 25th Olympiad in Barcelona was a penalty point. But so long as we're being billed as the first of the "post-Cold War" era; the dawn of a new Olympic age in which political tensions between East and West would no longer stain athletic competition.

Indeed, the 1992 Olympics is a welcome change from the boycotts of the 1970s and '80s. But if you think politics is no longer a part of the games, think again.

In search of a water-logged monster

For all its fabled history, very little useful is known about northern Scotland's Loch Ness except that it is the largest freshwater lake in Great Britain and, of course, that a monster lives in it.

The problem is the monster. Human nature being what it is, serious efforts to learn more about the loch usually have gotten bogged down in sensational publicity and the invasion of curiosity-seekers eager for new shreds of evidence confirming the monster's existence. It has made bona fide scientisis reluctant to lend their help in researching the loch's forbidding, largely uncharted depths and what really is in them.

Such is the plight these days of the upstanding, respectable Freshwater Biological Association, whose director, by the way, is Gwynfryn Jones, a name too superbly British to not mention. Since it announced plans to undertake the first real scientific examination of the loch, it has been besieged with complaints about why it would trifle with something like a monster hunt — at the same time spurring a new frenzy of interest in getting the goods on the monster at last.

OTHER VIEWS

The association wants nothing to do with such fantasies. It intends to map the loch and its surrounding ravine, accurately plumb its icy depths and study its fish, plant and animal life. It is particularly ecstatic about the possibility of finding previously unknown microscopic organisms, which, granted, would not be on the scale of finding the reclusive monster.

Ha! Does anyone believe that these guys are on a quest of pure science? They are calling their three-week effort Project Urquhart, which just happens to be the name of an ancient castle from which many sightings of the monster were made - rich fodder indeed for Loch Ness monster conspiracy theorists.

The fuss is a little baffling, since a local, 84-year-old Benedictine monk says he can produce up to 4,000 affidavits from trusted, sober Highlanders who have seen the beast, which quite settles the matter. The prevailing theory is that it's a plesiosaur that didn't die with the rest of its kind 65 million years ago, but was trapped in the loch. No one has explained if the same plesiosaur has lived all this time or if there were offspring, in which case at least two were trapped.

Never mind. Let the scientists proceed, and hope that if they accidentally stumble upon the monster, they don't tell anyone. That would ruin everything.

Adult softball keeps kids out of ballpark

A beautiful summer afternoon, 13 kids playing a pick-up baseball game at Elver Park. Causing no trouble, just playing baseball. A police officer drives and tells them they must get off the field, so the adults can play softball there some five hours later.

This happened to my kids and their friends last year and the policy continues today, in our city parks.

Madison Schools' Com-The Recreation Department rents, for the adult softball program, Elver, Olbrich and Bowman Fields from May through July, every day of the week, from the City Parks Department. I was told by the Parks Department that the Rec Department pays "big money" to maintain the fields and keep the public from using them prior to games. Evidently the tax we pay for our parks is not considered "big money.

The fields are dragged and lined p.m. games, every day of the week. The kids' first chance to use the ball fields is sometime in August!

I played softball for 25 years in Madison. I think it's great we have such a strong program, but let's be reasonable. I think there is a lot of room for compromise, like locking them up an hour before game time, instead of seven hours.

To the people who make these decisions: You are locking our kids out of city parks so the adults can play. You need to reconsider your priorities.

Beacon of sense

For many years, Dane County Sup. Lyman Anderson has stood as a beacon of common sense and reasonableness. His recent guest column in support of the proposed Albion subdivision is a case in point.

The Albion subdivision is supby 11 a.m. and locked up until the 6 ported by the people of Edgerton, Stoughton and Albion, but was vetoed by Dane County Executive Richard Phelps. Phelps, whose support of unrestrained taxation has led to a rapid decline in the standard of living economically and environmentally in Dane County and especially Madison, has the audacity to say that a 25-unit subdivision on 35 acres of non-agricultural, marginal recreational land will somehow lead to a decline in the quality of life for Dane County residents. He is a hypocrite and a hamhanded autocrat whose reasons for the veto are political, not environmental.

Phelps has aided the willy-nilly growth on Madison's West Side and other areas. My guess is that members of real estate and building industry organizations who have built in these areas contribute large sums to his campaigns. Could it be that Phelps hasn't gotten contributions from those who would build in Albion? It's possible. Could it be that his yeto of the Albion subdivision is supposed to show that he thinks he is the "boss man" rather than show a concern for the environment or urban sprawl? It's possible. Is Phelps trying to punish the small communities surrounding Madison for not voting his "party line" and supporting his socialistic agenda? It's downright probable!

As a former small town resident who now resides in Madison, my support is with the people of Albion, Stoughton and Edgerton and others who deserve to exercise control over their destinies and developments. It's time for a change in the county executive's office.

- Bill Sumner, Madison

$8-million lie

Dane County Executive Richard Phelps is truly the $8-million man, because he is telling the residents of Dane County an $8-million lie. Phelps wants the county to borrow $12 million to donate to the Nolen Terrace Convention Center in Madison, and to repay the amount at the rate of $1 million per year for 20 years. This $12-million donation really costs Dane County taxpayers $20 million, but Phelps keeps insisting it is only $12 million. Someone should explain to Phelps that when you spend $20 million to give $12 million, the cost is $20 million.

The state of Wisconsin should hire Phelps to run the overcrowded prison system. Phelps could put 20 inmates in every cell, and tell them there are only 12 of them in there. Phelps' "new math" would certainly eliminate prison overcrowding, if he can fit 20,000 inmates into space designed for 12,000.

Dane County taxpayers can't afford a 20-year liability based on deceitful political ramblings. Dane County needs a county executive capable of looking the taxpayer in the eye and telling him the truth. We just can't afford another one of Phelps' Phollies.

Looking for enemies?

It has been suggested that a nation, to thrive, must have internal and external enemies. This is Realpolitik. We have lost a reliable external enemy in the Soviet Union. My hunch is that the Arab States will become the new insidious enemy. . . Most enemies are imaginary. War is absurd as a method of solving problems. Meeting human needs will work both in geopolitics and in families, but it will not be tried because it is too practical.

Property owners living in towns across Wisconsin pay municipal taxes at far lower rates than do city and village dwellers, a new study by a Madison-based re-

Among the more fortunate property owners were those in eight villages and 58 towns who had no municipal taxes to pay in 1992. Except for three, they offer limited services and have sufficient other revenue to cover their needs.

Three of them, including the town of Pacific in Columbia County, have large electric utilities located in their boundaries and received large revenue pay-

U2 concert at stadium confirmed for September

By Joe Schoenmann The Capital Times

The Irish rock band U2 makes a return appearance to Madison in September. But instead of attracting hundreds like their first concert, their performance is expected to be the biggest musical event ever here.

The University of Wisconsin Athletic Department and Frank Productions confirmed U2 will perform Sunday, Sept. 13, at Camp Randall Stadium.

Michael Green, UW-Madison director of facilities and events, estimated around 60,000 tickets will be available. He said the price may be close to $30 each. Specific ticket information will be announced Thursday. The band's swing through in school.

Madison is part of their "Zoo TV-Outside Broadcast" tour which begins Aug. 11 at Giants Stadium in New Jersey.

Earlier this summer, Frank Productions organized Genesis stadium concert that sold about 50,000 tickets and netted the Athletic Department about $80,000. The National W Club, a UW football booster club, earned another $60,000.

Tickets for that concert sold for $25 each.

The Athletic Department probably stands to earn well over $90,000 from the U2 concert, Green said.

Green expects more and younger fans for this second stadium concert. It will be held when all of the UW-Madison's 40,000-plus students are back

"We're expecting a little younger crowd," said Green.

This won't be the first time the band has ever played Madi-

When they were starting out about 11 years ago, they played at the old Headliners, 642 University Ave. (now Bermuda's), where about 500 people showed up on a Sunday night.

At the end of the show, the band's lead singer, Bono, invited an audience member on stage to bellow out a song together.

Though U2 has been performing for more than 10 years, they gained international fame in 1987 when their album, "The Joshua Tree," won a Grammy Award as Album of the Year.

FITCHBURG — A proposal that would restrict media access to city department heads has led two City Council members to charge Mayor Frances Huntley-Cooper and Administrator Dan Elsass with censorship.

MORNING BRIEFING

Farwig takes lead in Bay State golf

Former Mequon resident Stephanie Farwig shot a 4-underpar 68 to tie for the lead after the first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association Bay State Classic at Blue Hill Country Club in Canton, Mass., Thursday.

Farwig, who now lives in Scottsdale, Ariz., is atop the leaderboard with LPGA Tour rookie Florence Descampe, 23, of Belgium and Hall of Famer Pat Bradley, a Westford, Mass., native who never has won an LPGA tourney in her home state.

Farwig, 33, who has finished better than 45th only once this season and has missed the cut in six of 12 tourneys, had a steady round of four birdies and no bogeys. She almost eagled the 18th, missing the cup by an inch with an 8-iron.

"A bogey-free round . . . that's a lot of fun," Farwig said. "I haven't had a good starting round in a while. I felt in control."

Sherri Steinhauer of Madison shot a 70.

A steady morning rain left the greens at Yahara Hills unplayable, prompting the decision.

"It's happened a couple of times," said Dave Kelliher, the tournament director, who could not recall precisely the years. "We used to have a provision to go to Monday to play a round, but we don't do that anymore." Rain postponed the final round of the 1981 tournament to Monday when Nakoma's John Aehl prevailed. Records dating back to 1970 indicate that the tournament never has been shortened.

Bickle heads field for race in Oregon

Madison International Speedway in Oregon will host the Mello Yello 100 stock-car race tonight.

Edgerton native Rich Bickle Jr., who won his first Miller Genuine Draft Nationals title July 14 at Madison International. is among the super late model drivers expected to compete on the half-mile track.

The winning purse in the feature race is $2,200.

It is the last scheduled appearance for Bickle this season at MIS, where he has two feature victories this season.

Gates open at 5:30 p.m. Time trials begin at 6:30, and racing starts at 8.

Lockington, Martin top UW recruits

As prep wrestlers, Dale Martin of Riverdale and Jason Lockington of Arcadia enjoyed one of the state's top rivalries. In college, the two will be teammates at the University of Wisconsin.

Lockington, a three-time Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association state champion, tops a list of 11 recruits whom UW Coach Andy Rein announced this week. Eight of the 11 recruits won at least one state prep title.

In addition to Lockington (a

Packers' offense still lacking tin (134), Rein landed seven other in-state recruits: Stoughton's Jed Trachte (190), Saukville's Bill Bonlender (heavyweight), Mount Horeb's Mike Moll (158), Fond du Lac's Court Gifford (134/142), Rhinelander's Kevin Wilmot (167), Plymouth's Mark Bebee (126/134) and Dellwood's Mike Dowdell (158). Kyle Werkheiser (158/167) of projected 142-pounder) and Mar-

Easton, Pa., and Harris Brumer (167) of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., are UW's out-of-state recruits.

■ Matt Demaray, a two-time NCAA champion who graduated this spring from the UW, will be a graduate assistant coach next season. He joins former Iowa wrestler Barry Davis as newcomers to the Badgers' staff.

■ Mitch Hull, a former UW wrestler and assistant coach, has resigned as coach at Purdue to take a job with USA Wrestling.

ODDS & ENDS

Michel "Bunny" Larocque, 40, who was a goalie for four National Hockey League teams over 11 seasons, died Wednesday night after a three-month battle with brain cancer at Hull, Quebec. He won four Stanley Cup rings in his stay with the Montreal Canadiens (1974-80). . . . Top-seeded Roger Bowker of Ocala, Fla., won his third Professional Bowlers Association title with a 228-208 victory over Butch Soper of Lake Havasu City, Ariz., in the stepladder championship game of the Columbia 300 Open at San Antonio, Texas. The victory was worth $21,000 to Bowker, who also won PBA tournaments in 1988 and 1990. . . . Former Alabama University basketball coach Wimp Sanderson has been hired to do public relations work for Great Southern Wood Preserving, an Alabama-based producer of wood products, the company stated. Sanderson quit as Alabama coach May 18 after allegations he struck a female administrative assistant, who has filed a lawsuit.

. . . Tab Ramos, 25, one of the top players on the U.S. soccer team, was transferred from Figueras to Real Betis in the Spanish second division for about $400,000. Ramos, of Kearny, N.J., agreed to a four-year contract.

Topp topples all-city mark

By Shari Rampenthal Sports reporter

MIDDLETON - A 15-year-old record, one of the longest standing at the Madison all-city swimming championship, was broken Thursday by a 14-year-old.

Susie Topp of the Middleton Pool swam the 100-yard freestyle for 13to 14-year-old girls in 55.09 seconds in a preliminary heat at the Middleton-Cross Plains Indoor Pool, blotting out the mark of :55.24 set in 1977 by Mary Coluccy of the Ridgewood Pool.

"I hope mine stands up for 15 years," Topp said. "Hopefully it will, but you never know."

That record was one of six to fall Thursday at the 31st annual meet, which was held indoors - by design, not by the weather — for the first time.

Three swimmers washed out the mark of 1:04.09 set in the girls 13-14 100 backstroke by Ridgewood's Sue Horinek in 1978. Libby Haagensen of Hill Farm Pool earned the top seed in the event for Saturday's finals with a 1:03.04. Parkcrest Pool's Michelle Kramer and Kerry Danahy also beat Horinek's numbers.

Two of the other records to fall came in backstroke events - Hill Farm's Heather Draper in the girls 15-18 100 and Parkcrest's Ryan Horton in the boys 15-18 100.

Hill Farm Coach Chris Dold said records in backstroke events have been falling often in the past two years since swimmers have been allowed to use flip turns instead of touching the side on every turn.

"But even without that turn I think Libby would be under that record," Dold said. "She's probably one of the best backstrokers I've seen come along in a while."

Horton, the state high school champion in the 100 freestyle and 100 backstroke for Madison Memorial, shattered the 1984 record of :56.83 set by Ridgewood's Jack Young in the 100 backstroke.

"I had a good idea I'd do that today," said Horton, who is using the meet as a tuneup for the Junior Nationals West competition in Pasedena, Calif., next week. "I'm pretty well rested, well tapered."

This is Horton's last city meet, so he wanted to leave behind some kind of legacy, but knew Jay Mortenson's mark of :47.48 in the boys 15-18 100 freestyle probably was out of reach. Mortenson, a former Madison West swimmer, won a gold medal in the 100 butterfly at the 1988 Olympics.

"I'll let Jay have that one," quipped Horton, who swam a :48.52. Horton may be one of the leading point-getters for Parkcrest as it tries to defend the team title it belatedly won last year. Ridgewood was crowned the winner after the meet for the 20th straight year. But about a week later a couple of scoring errors were discovered and Parkcrest was elevated from three-point runnerup to four-point champion.

'Based on the heat sheets Middleton is favored to win it," Parkcrest Coach Bill Wuerger said. "But we're doing an outstanding job and if we keep it up it'll be close."

Also setting records were Ryan Scheuerman of the Monona Swim Club in the 15-18 200 individual medley and Parkcrest's Tom Jones in the 15-18 100 breastroke.

(Top six qualifiers in each event)
Key: Cherokee (C), Hill Farm (HF), Maple Bluff (MB), Middleton (MI), Monona (Mo), Nakoma (N), Parkcrest

receivers in the NFL, has a neck injury that could keep him sidelined for much of the season. Brown, 29, sustained a ruptured cervical disk in the neck and will undergo surgery next week in Cincinnati. It is not known what caused the injury.

Denver Broncos wide receiver Vance Johnson will be sidelined about three months after surgery for a tear in his right shoulder. Johnson injured the shoulder Monday and swelling led doctors to believe the pectoral muscle was torn a diagnosis confirmed during exploratory surgery Thursday. That compounds injuries to running back and third-down specialist Steve Sewell (broken ankle, season over) and wide receiver Michael Young (off-season back surgery). New York Giants offensive lineman William Roberts was admitted to a hospital for tests after experiencing high blood pressure and a rapid heart beat. He has no history of heart trouble and a Giants official said Roberts' problem did not appear serious. Coach Ray Handley said the 6-foot-5, 280-pound Roberts, entering his eighth season, reported sick to the trainer's room just before afternoon practice at the Giants' camp at Fairleigh Dickinson University.

The Brazilian team features an international version of Bird in Oscar Schmidt, who lacks Bird's all-around skills but has his ability to score from all angles and distances. Before Wednesday night, Bird wasn't playing like an all-star on a team of all-stars. A stiff back and a corresponding loss of stamina limited him to just 16 points in four appearances.

Against Germany, however, Bird came off the bench to score 13 first-half points in less than 9½ minutes on 5-for-6 shooting, including two of three 3-point-

Souza, however, says he meant no such disrespect.

Team USA has effectively stopped the opposition's bigname scorer at the Olympics, holding Croatia's Toni Kukoc to four points and Germany's Detlef Schrempf to 15, only three of which came before the United States led by at least 30 points.

SPORTS BRIEFS

From staff and news services

BASEBALL The Los Angeles Dodgers will have to spend the rest of the season without eight-time All-Star outfielder Darryl Strawberry, who's facing back surgery with just a little concern.

"There's a lot of fear going into surgery for anyone," Strawberry said. "I don't think anyone could be happy about a situation like this. After it's all over with, I can tell you a different story. But I haven't been there yet. So there's definitely a lot of fear there.'

Strawberry said Thursday he will have surgery to repair a herniated disk in his lower back and will be out for the rest of the season. His only previous surgery was in 1985 to repair torn ligaments in his right

Strawberry

Strawberry, 30, has played only 38 games this year, and is batting just .237 with five home runs and 24 RBIs. He was placed on the disabled list on May 16 because of the disk and was activated July 6. He was homerless and drove in just three runs in 12 games after his return, and was placed on the disabled list again on July 22.

Second baseman Juan Samuel, troubled by strikeouts, errors and injuries during his 21/2 seasons with the Los Angeles Dodgers, was given his unconditional release.

Samuel, who missed 47 games this season with a broken finger, was hitting .262 with no homers and 15 RBIs. In 10 seasons in the majors with Philadelphia, the New York Mets and Dodgers, the 31-year-old Samuel has a .259 average with 128 homers and 343 stolen bases.

Madison's Sherri Steinhauer, who shot a 70. Jane Geddes opened with a 69 on the 6,139-yard Blue Hill course. Juli Inkster, Kim Williams, Nancy Taylor, and Alice Ritzman were two back at 70 along with Steinhauer.

TENNIS U.S. captain Tom Gorman named Andre Agassi and Jim Courier to the team that will face Sweden in the Davis Cup semifinals Sept. 25-27 in Minneapolis. The doubles team will be announced later.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl beat Jimmy Arias 6-3, 6-0 and Eric Amend defeated Pat Cash 7-6 (7-3), 6-3 in the second round of the U.S. Pro Championships in Brookline, Mass.

FOOTBALL The Green Bay Packers' defensive unit has shown more progress than the offense during the first week of training camp, coach Mike Holmgren said.

They are both getting a lot thrown at them. Right now the defense is a little stronger, but all season I would say that,' Holmgren said.

A highlight of Thursday's 23-play scrimmage was safety Adrian White's crunching hit on wide receiver Sanjay Beach. The Packers will hold their first full scrimmage Sunday at Lambeau Field. Holmgren said he had not decided on a format for the scrimmage or which order his four quarterbacks -Don Majkowski, Brett Favre, Ty Detmer and Jeff Bridewell would play.

■ There may be another Sanders in the Detroit Lions' den. Barry Sanders' older brother Byron Sanders has a chance to make the Lions' roster as a backup running back.

A 1989 draft choice of the Chicago Bears, Sanders has gotten a close look from coach Wayne Fontes as the Lions try to find a worthy backup for the 1991 Player of the Year.

HORSE RACING A horse racing industry spokesman predicts Canterbury Downs in St. Paul, Minn., will close after this season following today's Minnesota Supreme Court decision. The high court ruled that telephone wagering and off-track betting parlors are unconsitutional.

Meanwhile, there's exultation on the part of the state legislator who brought the lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of those forms of betting. Cort Holten, attorney for a group of state horse owners and trainers, told the Saint Paul Pioneer Press that the decision "will bring the horse racing industry in Minnesota to a close. The track may struggle to finish the season. They certainly won't open the doors next year.' But Rep. James Rice, DFL-Minneapolis, said the track 18 miles southwest of Minneapolis could have closed without his lawsuit, noting declining revenues.

WRESTLING Dale Martin of Riverdale and Jason Lockington of Arcadia were the best of rivals in high school but each will be teammates on the University of Wisconsin wrestling team.

Lockington, a three-time WIAA state champion, tops the list of recruits whom UW Coach Andy Rein announced this week. Eight of the 11 have at least one state title. In addition to Lockington (a projected 142-pounder) and Martin (134), Rein also landed Stoughton's Jed Trachte (190), Saukville's Bill Bonlender (heavyweight), Mount Horeb's Mike Moll (158), Fond du Lac's Court Gifford (134/142), Rhinelander's Kevin Wilmot (167), Plymouth's Mark Bebee (126/134), Dellwood's Mike Dowdell (158), Kyle Werkheiser (158/167) of Easton, Pa., and Harris Brumer (167) of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Matt Demaray, a two-time NCAA champion who graduated from the UW this spring, will join the Badger coaching staff as a graduate assistant.

■ Mitch Hull, a former UW wrestler and assistant coach, has resigned as coach at Purdue. He will take a job with USA Wrestling.

■ Madison Holy Name Seminary is looking for head coaches for cross country and wrestling and an assistant football coach. Call athletic director Dave Richardson if you're interested (833-1010).

BITS AND PIECES Some members of the Madison 56ers and Yahara soccer clubs are returning to Madison today after playing for club teams in southwest England during an 18-day tour of Wales and England as members of Louis Bennit's British-American Soccer Program 1992.

Michael Balistreri, Billy Buffo, David Downs, Matt Jankowski, Ryan Merkow, Justin Merkow, Theran Motl, Ryan Myers, Kevin Page, Michael Plumb and Alex Senatori competed on teams in the Ian Rush International Soccer Tournament in Aberystwyth, Wales, for players on 12-and-under and 14-and-under teams.

TRIVIA ANSWER Dave Winfield (1,655 through Wednesday) and Eddie Murray of the New York Mets (1,532). Winfield ranks No. 16 all-time; Murray No. 30.

Rain shortens city golf to 54 holes

By Rob Schultz

The Capital Times Thunder and lightning can stop a golf tournament in its drains, then golfers are always sent out with their umbrellas and

Unfortunately, Yahara Hills' ni's shot at greens, already saturated from all the rain that has fallen the past month, did not drain too well Thursday and that forced the first round of the men's city tournament to be cancelled. That cancellation, the first in it to the end.

shots of the leader. In other words, Mario Tiziaunprecedented four straight city titles, just got much tougher. "This gives more golfers a chance," said Dave Kelliher, the director of the city tournament. "If one guy gets hot, he'll stay in Problems began at Yahara, in its best condition since it opened in the 1960s, shortly after the rain started falling Thursday morning. As soon as the grounds crew removed the water from the greens, more puddles would quickly reappear.

'We tried putting on the 10th green and there were rooster tails coming off the back of the ball," said Yahara Hills pro Mark Rechlicz, who was frustrated that his course couldn't be showcased during the city tournament. "You don't want to call it off, but the greens were just un-

Golfers were scheduled to tee off from noon until 2 p.m. Rechlicz and Kelliher waited until 1:45 before they cancelled the first round. Part of the problem was that if they started anytime after 2, some golfers wouldn't tee off until after 4 and there was some concern that they'd run out of daylight.

Kelliher said the cut to the low 40 golfers and ties will be made after today's round at Blackhawk. The tournament moves to Cherokee Country Saturday and concludes at Odana Hills Sunday.

Six records fall at all-city swim meet

swimming records were falling in Barcelona at the Summer Olympics, the area's best junior swimmers were busy breaking six records in the 31st annual Madison all-city championships. Leading the pack of record breakers at the Middleton-Cross Plains Indoor Pool was Susie Topp, who broke a 15-year-old record in a preliminary heat of the 100-yard freestyle for 13- to 14-year-old girls. Topp's time of 55.09 seconds broke Mary Coluccy's old mark of 55.24 set in

Not one, but three swimmers broke the old record in the 100 backstroke for 13-14 girls. Libby Haagensen of Hill Farm Pool earned the top seed in the event for the finals with a 1:03.04,

Hill Farm's Heather Draper set a meet record in the girls' 15-18 100 backstroke and Parkcrest's Ryan Horton, the WIAA state champion in the 100 freestyle and 100 backstroke, did the same in the boys' 15-18 100 backstroke.

Also setting records in the preliminaries were Ryan Scheuerman of the Monona Swim Club in the 15-18 individual medley and Parkcrest's Tom Jones in the 15-18 breaststroke.

Parkcrest is the defending champion in the meet after dethroning Ridgewood, which had its streak of 19 straight titles broken last year.

The meet continues today and Saturday.

Reedsburg offers pretty challenge

By Rob Schultz

The Capital Times

REEDSBURG - For the serious golfer, a summer can't pass without making a trip to Reeds-burg Country Club. For the serious golfer who lives on the west side of Dane County, a summer can't pass without seriously thinking about becoming a member of the course.

This is a course that gets better every year. It has one of the prettiest and most fun layouts in the area. It's also one of the best conditioned courses open to golfers who don't belong to private Redesigned by Ken Killian, Dick Nugent and Bob Lohmann, they put a great deal of effort in creating some great putting surfaces. And to make them even better, golf course superintendent Pat Zurawski has them running fast and true. You'll be hard-pressed to find faster greens in this area. I found that out when I missed a 10 foot downhill slider on the 9th green and had a 15 footer coming back.

But while you may get a few headaches trying to make a putt, you'll get an even bigger headache trying to get your ball on the green. Accuracy is a big key to this course. Miss-hit your tee shot and you're in trees. Miss-hit your approach shot and you're in

ON COURSES

The 510-yard, par-5 fourth hole may best exemplify what Reedsburg Country Club is all about. Cut through trees, all you have to do to make par is hit three straight long shots to a green well-guarded with traps.

In fact, it's almost impossible for most golfers to reach any of Reedsburg's par-5s in two shots. The best chance is at the 505yard 7th hole, but that green is set up so tight with a ravine, trees and traps that most golfers

OK, so you have to make birdies on the par-4s. That's possible when you take a look at the scorecard and you only see one longer than 400 yards. But that doesn't mean they aren't difficult. In fact, the 386-yard, par-4 14th may be one of the most difficult in the state. And the longest par-4, the 408-yard 17th that angles so sharply downhill to the left and has a green the size of a maple leaf, rivals the 14th in difficulty.

For the serious golfer, Reedsburg Country Club is a definite can't-miss. So does that mean the not-so-serious golfer shouldn't make the trip? No way. From the white tees Reedsburg is quite tame. It's just 5,896 yards long and some of its bite is taken Since Reedsburg is a private course, non-members can only play it a few times each year. But that's better than never getting a chance so take advantage of one of Wisconsin golf's real pleasures.

Course: Reedsburg Country

Location: Wis. 33, Reedsburg. Phone: 1-524-6000.

How to get there: Take U.S. 12 through Baraboo and turn on Wis. 33. Travel about 10 miles.

Pro: Dan Hillcoat.

Par: 72.

Yardage: 6,267 (blue tees); 5,896 (white tees); 5,209 (red ratings: Course/slope 70.5/129 (blue tees); 69.0/125 (white tees); 70.3/124 (red tees).

Greens fees: $13 (9 holes) and $22 (18 holes) weekday; $15 and $27 weekends. Tee times mandatory. Private course that allows non-members to play it. Call for restrictions.

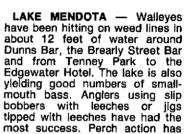

Best hole: 386-yard, par-4 14th hole. Unquestionably one of the best par-4s in this part of the state. A tough, tight dogleg left, you must hit an accurate, long iron off the tee to have a shot at the green for your approach. If you hit a wood there's a chance of knocking it too long and into trees beyond the fairway.

The fairway narrows even more as it heads toward the green. To make it tougher, the green is well-trapped and there's a creek guarding the front to take away any punch shots. Once you make it on the green, you encounter one of the longest putting surfaces on the course. Say a prayer before you tee off. If you make a par here, you've accomplished a major

Amenities: Nice restaurant and bar overlooking lake, pro shop, practice green and practice

ishing Report

LAKE MONONA — Bluegill action remains strong, and they can be found in 24 to 35 feet of water about 12 feet down near Olbrich, Hudson and Olin parks. Woolly Worms tipped with wax worms or spikes are producing the best re-sults. Perch fishing is still good, with helgramites and Woolly Worms the most effective balts.

Muskle action is good.

LAKE WAUBESA — Perch and bluegills have been biting in about 14 feet of water near the rock pile. While largemouth bass have been tough to find, some good-sized ones have been taken recently. Muskies continue to hit on crankbaits and medium to large bucktails. Surface lures should also start producing muskles soon.

LAKE KEGONSA — Some good catches of stripers are being taken from the middle of the lake about 18 feet down in about 35 feet of water. Spinners and jigs tipped with nightcrawlers or red worms have been working. Some nice-sized walleyes have also been taken. The Yahara River has yielded nice catches of catfish and largemouth bass. WISCONSIN RIVER - Catfish and walleyes have provided anglers the most action near Spring Green.

GOOD CATCH — Bill Mack of Madison recently caught a 20-inch, 5-pound largemouth in the Yahara River using a plastic worm. ■ Steve Ringelstetter of Spring Green landed a 3½-pound smallmouth in the Wisconsin River.

Andy Borman of Mazomanie recently caught a 41/2-pound largemouth in White Mound Lake, lo-cated north of Plain.

AROUND THE STATE - Walleye fishing has been slow throughout northern Wisconsin but muskles have been active on Iron County Lakes and the Wisconsin River north of Wausau, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Trout action was good in the Wisconsin Rapids area as well as around the Apostle Islands.

(D&S Northside Bait, Broadway Bait and Tackle, Kegonsa Cove in McFarland, Steve Gernardt's Sports Center and Mr. and Mrs. T's in Spring Green contributed to this report, as did The Associated

Schuetz learns fast. makes all-city finals

John Walsh of Maple Bluff is all concentration as he competes in the 9-10 boys backstroke competition Friday at the All-City swim meet.

MIDDLETON — Eric Schuetz may have learned how to swim just eight weeks ago, but that didn't stop him from earning the top seed in today's 8-and-under 25-yard backstroke finals in Madison's all-city swimming championships at the Middleton-Cross Plains Area Pool.

And his time of 17.6 seconds during Friday's preliminary rounds is just eight-tenths of a second off the meet record set by Shannon Fields in 1984. Schuetz, who swims for the Middleton Pool, was taught the strokes and techniques of swimming in the last week and a half by Middleton Pool coach Kara Randall.

Margie Witter, also of the Middleton Pool, earned the top seed in the girls 9-10 50 freestyle and the 50 butterfly. Both Schuetz and Witter use visualization techniques they learned from Randall.

While six records fell during Thursday's opening rounds, only one record was set Friday. Evans did that with a 17.33-second performance in the 8-and-under backstroke. That mark erased the old record set in 1977 by Andrea Domek of Ridgewood Pool.

The meet's youngest swimmer to earn a spot in today's eightswimmer finals, which run from 8:30 a.m. to about 4 p.m., is Hill Farm 6-year-old Anne Huepenbecker. She is the seventh seed in the 8-and-under 25 breastroke.

Fishing tips from a pro

Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune

There are many ways to fish for largemouth bass, but most of the time — under ordinary conditions — it's hard to beat plastic worms for steady action. Here are some hints from angling pro Randy Amenrud:

■ Stained or muddy waters call for a worm with a large, active tail. The vibrations help fish find the lure when visibility is

■ In clear water, use a shorter worm with a less pronounced tail. In many clear-water situations, a 4-inch or 5-inch worm will be just right. The exception: When bass are feeding aggressively in clear water, a large worm with an active tail will be effective.

■ When working reedy areas, avoid the big active tails. They tend to wrap around the stems of reeds, while a straight tail will slide through.

■ Keep changing colors until the right one is found. Black, purple and red are good ways to start. Good two-tone colors include black/blue and black/chartreuse. Sometimes the fish will hit any color, but don't forget that there are other times when color choice is crucial.

A good way to rig a worm is with a 1- or 1/8-ounce jig head. But in heavy vegetation, a weedless Texas-style rig is the way to go. The Texas hooking percentage is almost as good as that of the jig-head rig.

Learning to use worms properly and becoming accustomed to the light "take" of a bass can take time. Next time you go bass fishing, limit yourself to plastic. Forcing yourself to learn to use worms will pay off with many more fish.

Downsizing hotter talk than football

It was mid-evening Thursday. The crowd was dispersing early from a reception for the media, coaches, bowl scouts and hangers-on who had gathered in Chicago for the annual two-day session of tub-thumping for the upcoming Big Ten Conference football season.

A sports information director ambled over to see a couple of old friends and summed up the theme of the meetings. "With all the talk about gender equity, you'd never know this was supposed to be a football press conference," he said.

At times, the gathering resembled a University of Wisconsin Athletic Board meeting more than a place to showcase football teams. There was more talk about budgets than bowl chances and as much chatter about future scholarship cuts as future pro players.

BROPHY

Part of the reason for this is the seachange that collegiate sports is going through and the waves are finally brushing up against football. And part of the reason for the tone of meetings was there isn't much to hype about the Big Ten this season.

When your only pre-season all-American is a center and the biggest name on the marquee at the kickoff luncheon is Michigan quarterback Elvis Grbac, you can see why there was as much talk about reducing football scholarships as there was about the prospects for the season.

There is little doubt about the conference favorite. Michigan, ranked among the nation's top five teams by every preseason magazine that hasn't run a picture of Suzy Favor Hamilton, is the unanimous choice to win its fifth straight conference championship.
What about Wisconsin? The Badgers actually heard their name mentioned by coaches this year. Generally, they were bunched with Purdue as an improving team that gives the conference parity.

Now this is not high praise, you might say. But it is the first time anyone has acknowledged the Badgers football program in mid-summer since the mid-80s. That is progress.

And if you talk to Wisconsin Coach Barry Alvarez, he'll tell you his team is progressing. He did not like it suggested. however, that the Badgers' 5-6 season in 1991 was a breakthrough year.

"Until we have a winning season and until we go to a bowl game, I won't consider us having turned the corner," said Alvarez. "We came very close a year ago . . . . But we're not there yet.

"What we have to do to turn the corner and be a contender in the Big Ten is, No. 1, our offense has to become consistent and productive. We haven't had that. Our defense has to continue to play as it has and pick up where it left off last year and our special teams have to pick up where it left off. If we get productivity from our offense, we'll be able to compete with anyone.'

Since the Badgers open the season at Washington, the defending national champion with the best defense this side of the Chicago Bears, it is unlikely the offense will get a big confidence boost early in the year. However, Jay Macias or Darrell Bevell will have to emerge as an offensive leader at quarterback in the non-conference games against Bowling Green and Northern Illinois if the Badgers are going to have any chance to improve on last season's record.

There is always a lot of attention paid to the quarterback position, but this fall in Madison, Macias and Bevell will probably get as much notice as Bush and Clinton. Because unless the Badgers get a decent year from their quarterback, their offense is unlikely to show major improvement. Unless the offense improves, it is unlikely the record will improve.

And for fans waiting for a program to rebuild, that can be as maddening as wanting to talk football when the topic becomes gender equity.

Twins top Brewers

By Jim Caple

Knight-Ridder Newspapers

MINNEAPOLIS - Just another run-of-the-mill, ho-hum, Twins-Brewers yawner.

Twins starter John Smiley had a 4-1 lead with with two out in the eighth inning Saturday night. But before Minnesota's 9-6 American League victory finally was secured, Smiley and the fans remaining from a crowd of 51,043 watched 10 runs score and: ■ Tom Edens re-enter the ever-dangerous world of a closer. Kirby Puckett nearly match

Dave Kingman in the department of gravity-defying pop flies. Brian Harper hit a grand

■ Paul Molitor triple twice, score once and drive in three runs. In the end, Paul Abbott ended Milwaukee's four-run ninth inning and Minnesota expanded its lead in the AL West to 11/2 games. "We're both good-hitting teams," Harper said of the battles

Rowers capture silver

BANYOLES, Spain (AP) — Former University of Wisconsin athletes Cindy Eckert and Carol Feeney helped the United States capture the silver medal in the women's coxless fours Saturday at the Summer Olympics. The U.S. team of Shelagh Dono-hoe of Lowell, Mass.; Eckert of Brookfield; Amy Fuller of West-lake, Calif., and Feeney of Oak Park, Ill., finished in 6 minutes, 31.86 seconds.

Canada's Kirsten Barnes, Brenda Taylor, Jessica Monroe and Kay Worthington won the gold in the event in 6:30.85. All but Worthington were members of the world championship team last year. Germany won the bronze.

Today, ex-UW rowers Yasmin Farooq and Sarah Gengler will race in the women's eight.

German Thomas Lange won his second straight gold in the men's single sculls as Germany took six medals in rowing Saturday.

Lange was one of two Germans to win gold in the seven events on Lake Banyoles. Canada also won two golds. The U.S. added a bronze to go along with its silver.

Lange, a 28-year-old medical student, won in a time of 6:51.40. Zechoslovakia won the silver and Poland the bronze.

Marnie Elizabeth Mcbean and Kathleen Heddle of Canada won the gold in the women's coxless pairs in 7:06.22. Anne Seaton of Manhattan, Kan., and Stephanie Maxwell-Pierson of Somerville, N.J., took the bronze at 7:08.11. The silver went to Stefanie Werremeier and Ingeburg Schwerzmann of Germany.

Kerstin Koeppen and Kathrin Boron of Germany won the gold in the women's double sculls in 6:49.00. Romania won the silver and China the bronze.

Steven Redgrave and Matthew Pinsent of Britain won the gold in men's coxless pairs Olympic rowing in 6:27.72.

Britain's Linford Christie, center, raises his arms triumphantly after winning the gold in the 100 meters Saturday.

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Doctors were ready to amputate Gail Devers' feet last year. Track officials were ready to banish Linford Christie from the Olympics four years ago. On a balmy night in Barcelona, they became the world's fastest man and woman, overcoming adversity to win the 100-meter gold medals at the Olympics. And on a hill above the city, marathon runner Valentina Yegorova of the Unified Team broke away from Japan's Yuko Arimori just before she was greeted by cheers from inside the stadium to win the gold. In a race without two-time de-

Armed Majik out to justify nickname

By Pat Stiegman Sports reporter

GREEN BAY — If it indeed is true that every moment of National Football League triumph is purchased with separate-but-equal time on the fiery football fields of hell, logic would dictate Green Bay Packers quarterback Don Majkowski has his books balanced.

Or hadn't you heard?

Been too absorbed in the Olympics Triplecast to shake your head over the McNeil vs. NFL trial in Minneapolis that has painted Majkowski as a $1.3 million victim of the league's restrictive free-agency policies? Or feel an empathetic cringe over the words of Frank Rothman, the NFL defense attorney who called Majkowski an "abysmal failure" as a QB in 1990?

Or pout over the 1991 Packers statistical analysis, a report as voluminous as the Federal Budget and as equally depressing: Last season's trio of Majkowski, Mike Tomczak and (now departed) Blair Kiel combined still failed to match the Majikal numbers of 1989, when Majkowski led the NFL in attempts (599), completions (353), passing yardage (4,318) and prestidigitation (infi-

Or generally puzzle over the injury-influenced rags-to-riches-torags story of Majkowski (Don Average Citizen) and his superhero alter-ego (The Majik Man), a schizophrenic split of personality that prompted one newspaper to warn,

'Don't call him Majik anymore." It is on this issue that Majkowski has decided to dwell, warming up the conversation on a dry-roasted Packers practice field last week by demystifying the man who he says surprise — is misunderstood. "My point is that I'm two different people, on and off the field,' says Majkowski, a 28-year-old bachelor whose culture extends beyond ESPN's SportsCenter and into the realm of art (his paintings hang in a gallery in his native Buffalo) and music (he once played guitar in a garage rock band called Joker).

"On the field, I'm cocky and confident and I think that faith in myself is necessary to get the job done," he said. "But when I'm off the field, I just don't want people to expect the same kind of things from

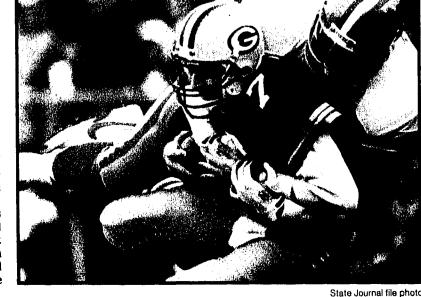

"But as for 'Don't call me that's ridiculous. I've had that nickname since I was in high school and I like it. That whole thing was taken out of text. I just want people to see me for who I really am."

Of course, one of fate's cruelest tricks is to grant us our wishes. And after being propped up as a verbal punching bag in the early days of the NFL trial, just who Donald Vincent Majkowski is has become — in some circles — all too clear.

Portrayed by the defense as money-mongering leeches buried hip-deep in hypocrisy, the eight player plaintiffs - Majkowski in particular - have been criticized for supposedly thriving under the

Parkcrest Pool leaves no doubt

By Shari Rampenthal Sports reporter

MIDDLETON — There was an unscheduled 5-minute break in the action late in the Madison all-city swimming championship Saturday at the Middleton-Cross Plains Area Pool because of a problem at the start of one of the day's final heats.

As everyone waited for the meet to resume, Parkcrest Pool Coach Bill Wuerger started clapping his hands and yelling "L-N-D," shorthand for "Leave No Doubt" which the team had adopted as its theme.

From another corner of the pool a chorus of "L-N-D" erupted as a group of Parkcrest swimmers overpowered their coach's call.

By that time Parkcrest already had a 141-point lead in the threeday, 10-club meet and there was no doubt it would capture its second consecutive team championship.

Parkcrest won 22 of the 68 events, including nine of the first 20 and the final three, and scored 2022.5 points. The Middleton Pool was second with 1865.5.

Even though it was Parkcrest's second straight triumph it was its first post-meet victory splashdown.

Last year, Ridgewood Pool was given the trophy for the 20th consecutive year after what was thought to be a three-point victory over Parkcrest. But a few scoring errors were discovered about a week later. The results were retabulated and Parkcrest was declared the champion by four points.

"This is my 11th and last year on the team and after seeing Ridgewood win it so many times, there's really nothing like this," Parkcrest swimmer Tom Thorstad said.

Wuerger had urged his team to go out hard and try to win the meet handily so there would be no doubt about who won the meet and no second-guessing themselves with a close decision.

"It's a great feeling to win it and know it at the time," Parkcrest swimmer Kim Martin said.

Leading the way for Parkcrest was Ryan Horton and Steven Wise, both of whom won two individual events and were members of two winning relay teams.

As the awards ceremony was beginning, Wuerger, who swam for Parkcrest for 11 years and has been coaching it for six, scanned the pool. What he saw was a mob of Parkcrest swimmers lining its sides, shoulder-to-shoulder, waiting to plunge in at the sight of its trophy.

'Every year I've beer involved, Ridgewood has won," Wuerger said. "This definitely is a first. We're still here and Ridgewood has gone home."

Records were set in 12 events aturday, including three by Parkcrest swimmers Michelle Kramer, Tom Jones and Leah Sibley.

Hill Farm Pool swimmers set four records, two by Scott Koziar and one each by Heather Draper and Libby Haagensen.

Haagensen already had set the record in the girls 13-14 100 backstroke in Thursday's preliminary heats, but her coach, Chris Dold, said she was in the pool Friday working on her starts and turns.

"This is what I've been training for all year," said Haagensen, whose time of 1 minute, .66 seconds shattered her mark of 1:03.44 from Thursday. "This is my big meet. I was really hoping I'd get it." Middleton's Susie Topp, who lost the record she set Thursday in the girls 13-14 100 freestyle by placing second to Kramer Saturday, came back to break the record in the 100 breaststroke. Other swimmers setting records were Westside's Jane Evans, Maple Bluff's Michael Morey, Monona's Ehren Keith, and Middleton relay team members David Mazur, Bryan Jackson, Chris Richard, Matt Shaw and Casey Hoff.

Black judges: soon extinct?

Consider the opening remarks in a speech given last week in St. Louis by A. Leon Higginbotham Jr., former chief judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 3rd Circuit:

"Suppose someone wanted to steal back past achievements, rein in present gains and cut off future expectations among African-Americans about participation in the judicial process.

"That person would have found it difficult to devise a better plan than nominating Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court while decreasing the number of African-American judges on the federal bench.

"The confirmation of Clarence Thomas forced the nation to pay attention to many issues, from the Senate's role in confirming Supreme Court justices to sexual harassment of women in the workplace. But the Thomas confirmation proceedings diverted our attention from one vital issue: Thanks to Presidents Ronald Reagan and George Bush, African-American judges on the U.S. Court of Appeals have been turned into an endangered species and are now on the edge of extinction."

Higginbotham's point is that despite Jimmy Carter's appointments of nine black appeals court judges in the late 1970s to bring the total to 11, Reagan and Bush have found only two qualified in the 12 years since - and that's out of 115 appeals court appointments. One of those two was Clarence Thomas, who has since moved up to the Supreme Court.

By 1993, six of the 10 remaining black judges will be eligible for retirement. In all cases where Carter's appointments have left the bench, Reagan and Bush have replaced them with white judges in their 30s and 40s.

As Higginbotham said, the point isn't that black judges ought to be appointed to sit in judgment of "black" cases, they ought to be appointed to make the entire legal system more pluralistic so that it represents the broad spectrum of the American experience.

He quoted Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's remarks about Thurgood Marshall: "At oral arguments and conference meetings, in opinions and dissents, Justice Marshall imparted not only his legal acumen but also his life experiences, pushing and prodding us to respond not only to the persuasiveness of legal argument but also to the power of moral truth."

But here we have another example of how the Reagan-Bush years have succeeded in turning back the clock on the nation's progress.

TOPICS

Now tell it like it is, Tommy

Our own Gov. Tommy Thompson, as one of the key players in George Bush's so-called "truth squad," is traveling around the country these days telling people what a terrible governor Democrat Bill Clinton has been.

First he told people that Clinton had raised Arkansas' taxes 128 times in his 12 years as governor, claiming that he himself had lowered them in Wisconsin. But when we checked, it was discovered that when you apply the Republicans' "tax hike" criteria to Thompson's own record in Wisconsin, Tommy's on roughly the same pace.

Now comes the news that Wisconsin ranks third in the nation in creating new non-agricultural jobs between May of 1991 and May of

That ought to be a statistic that Tommy could use in his next "truth squad" stop, except for one catch: Arkansas ranked second.

Public spirited, even in death

Our hat goes off in postumous tribute to Helen Damme Herrick of Madison, who died last week at the venerable age of 87. Her obituary read: "In lieu of flowers, Helen requested that donations be made to the presidential campaign of Clinton/Gore," and it listed the address.

As a gesture of concern for the future, it was both spirited and generous.

Helen Herrick's request, unconventional though it was, made clear her vital interest in the leadership of her country, even though that leadership would no longer affect her directly. It stands as one more proof that Americans young and old are intrigued by the possibility of change and troubled by evidence that the ship of state is in a state of drift.

MOLLY IVINS

GOP will run against gays

face of increasingly bad economic news, Bush and the Republicans have increasingly pitched the reelection campaign on 'family values,' a phrase nebulous that the GOP hopes connotes a social permissiveness on the part of Democrats, especially the party's support for homosexual rights.' — news story in the Houston Chronicle, July 29.

The Chronicle's analysis is conventional wisdom already. The Republicans are going to run against gays. Last time out, they used Willie Horton and our fear of black criminals to take our minds off the Iran-Contra scandal, the S&L crisis, the faltering economy and the whole greedfest of the '80s.

This time, it's homosexuals, dying by the hundreds of thousands of a terrible disease, who get to be "Them."

It seems to me the question here is not whether we approve of gay people, but what we make of a political party willing to whip up hatred against a minority group for partisan political gain. There is certainly a moral question involved.

This "social issues" game has been going on since the late 1960s, when running against unpopular "lifestyles," specifically long-haired, dope-smoking kids, proved to be a big hit.

Come to think of it, the game is a lot older than that. In the late 19th century, running against "rum, Romanism and rebellion" was the code phrase for much-despised Catholic immigrants.

The old dog still hunts. Get people all excited about some perceived menace from an unpopular group and maybe they won't notice the unemployment rate, maybe they'll forget that the richest 1 percent of the people got 60 percent of the new wealth in the '80s, maybe they'll overlook the exemptions carved out for the big donors to the Republican Party by Dan Quayle's Council on Competitiveness.

But keep your eye on the shell with the economic pea under it. Ross Perot's plan shows how tricky that pea can be.

In attempt to keep our collective eye on the shell with the pea under it, let's take another look at Ross Perot's deficit-reduction plan, with the help of Jamie Galbraith, the Texas economist (it runs in his family).

The Texas Galbraith raises what is probably the most important question to be asked about Perot's plan to balance the federal budget in five years: Is this really a right and proper goal?

Perot himself, before he dropped out of the race, predicted it would take 12 years to balance the budget and noted several times that it had to be done slowly and carefully in order not to hurt the economy. Because this is the fact of life: When you raise taxes and cut government spending, it slows economic growth.

Galbraith has run the numbers on the Perot plan, which is still short of details, and this is his conclusion:

"I calculate that real economic growth, presently predicted at 3 percent each year would fall below 2 percent by 1996, and virtually to zero by 1998. Unemployment would rise steadily, undermining the hoped-for expenditure savings. And with slower growth, the economy will be smaller every year than pre-sently predicted, until by 1998 there would be a gap of just about $1 trillion below current projection for GDP (gross domestic product, slightly different technically from the more familiar numbers in the old gross national product). Tax revenues would fall in proportion - by nearly $200 billion. In the end, the deficit would scarcely be smaller than if no plan were Galbraith goes on to say there are ways around this scenario. You could balance the negative effect of harsh budget cuts with a massive export program, based partly on an industrial policy that was the key to Perot's campaign and is also part of Clinton's economic plan.

But the Perot plan does not address that question and appears to rely on monetary policy alone to keep growth going. This is the same scheme that has so notably not been working under George Bush.

Galbraith's critique includes some praise for the Perot plan.

"The Perot plan is bold. It contains a needed public investment program and cuts of unneeded defense spending. The gas tax is a serious proposal. So is the idea of taxing more of Social Security income. So is a higher topbracket income tax rate. An in cremental investment tax credit has respected backers, as well as opponents."

But Galbraith also describes the Perot plan's 10 percent across-the-board reduction in government spending as "classic smoke-and-mirrors.

And he adds, "Strikingly, the plan provides tax relief to one group: rich people seeking to realize capital gains. There is no reputable economic case for this measure, and scant evidence that past capital gains cuts did any good. Recent studies even suggest that about half of realized capital gains are actually consumed, not reinvested, so that this break, even when restricted to long-term stock holdings, amounts to a tax preference for high living. This is an especially strange inclusion in a plan so full of sacrifice from everyone else.'

RADAR "If photo radar had snapped a picture of Mayor Soglin's auto traveling at 80 miles an hour during his recent chase of a motorcyclist on the West Beltline, would the self-proclaimed commander-in-chief of Madison's police have paid an indiscriminate photoissued speeding ticket or would he weasel out on the basis of privilege? Photo radar is just the latest stupid idea designed to torment Madison residents, but it will surely not be the last. Can't the Legislature or the governor step in to stop this madness before it gains a foothold in Wis-

CONSTRUCTION "Why do they simultaneously schedule construction on East Washington Avenue and North Stoughton Road? This is a far bigger hinderance than a help. People have jobs, people have deadlines, people have commitments. Construction is interferring with all of these.'

FAME "About this not-so-publicized Hall of Fame that the UW Athletic Department's W Club is funding and is currently having constructed: The estimated cost for this unneeded addition at Camp Randall Sports Center. which by the way belongs to the university division of recreational sports and not the Athletic Department, is $160,000-plus. This socalled shrine to past, old or dead athletes is a waste of money. I would think the W Club could find more beneficial ways to serve the Athletic Department or the campus in general. Further, why isn't it being constructed somewhere within the stadium or the Fieldhouse? And, last, is the W Club going to provide the upkeep and the cleaning off of graffiti that is sure to follow once it's completed?'

POOL "The all-city swim meet should be renamed the 'all-city swim meet for those kids rich enough to belong to a private pool.' Now all we hear is convention center, convention center. Have we dropped the idea of inexpensive swimming recreation for all Madison's kids? How sad. Madison, get your priorities straight for once. We need a pool more than a convention center."

CONVENTION "Why should the taxpayers pay anything for a convention center? Why not let the fat cats who stand to benefit the most from it pay all the costs? The rest of us want our basic services: adequate police and fire protection, snow removal and library services.

"I think turning over the running of the Frank Lloyd Wright center better be considered more closely if it's run by the county. You'd better take a look at how they run the Expo Center and how many problems, including financial problems, they've had with the Expo Center before you let them try and run the Wright center.

PRESIDENT "I believe the problem is not with one man trying to direction to our country but with the more than 500 men and women (Congress) who can't even balance their checkbooks. The president should have a line-item veto and there should be a balanced budget law.'

YAHOOS "I recently had a friend visit from South Dakota and, being the Madison elitist that I am, I thought I would show what a backward state South Dakota was. To illustrate the point, I proudly took my friend to the State Capitol. He listened to the debate in the Assembly and Senate and then observed some of the raucous behavior. He noted how young, foolish and self-serving many of the representatives were. Feeling a little sheepish, I then brought my friend to a speech by our cando governor. He listened for a while and said, 'That guy can't even speak proper English.' He went on to say the Wisconsin Legislature was inexperienced and arrogant, with a chief executive that should retake English 101. I couldn't stand it any longer and finally blurted out, 'You think these guys are bad, you should see the yokels and yahoos they represent.'

Why does hospital need 'restructuring'?

The monthly newsletter of the University of Wisconsin's Clerical and Related Employees unit of the Wisconsin State Employees Union makes it clear that there still is a lot of unhappiness about the University Hospital and Clinics' plan to "restructure."

The powers-that-be at the hospital originally wanted to "privatize" the public institution, contending that state regulations made it difficult for the hospital to compete in today's rapidly changing health services climate.

When that plan met with outrage from many corners of the state, the hospital administrators came up with a different approach that would include forming a quasi-public board to govern the hospital. That kind of structure would still keep the hospital under public ownership (the people of Wisconsin, after all, have paid to build it up all these years), but would allow the hospital to skirt some of the state regulations in its day-to-day dealings.

The union, however, isn't sure that this plan is any better.

'Despite the controversial nature of 'restructuring' there was no open dissent apparent during the work group meetings," the newsletter says of the process. "The premise that the Hospital and Clinics need to be restructured' in order to be freed from allegedly cumbersome rules and procedures that threaten their ability to compete was never ques-

The union remains convinced that the main motive behind the proposed rights and privileges now held by change is to dilute the union itself.

"It is obvious from the discussions in the Human Resources work group that the rights and benefits that workers now enjoy are under assault," the newsletter says. "The 'restructured' hospital would have two classes of employees; a 'separate but equal' system of rights and benefits that would pit employees against each other and would allow management to whipsaw employees into submission.

'Current employees would supposedly be guaranteed their state retirement and insurance benefits, but would be employees of the new institution and would have to negotiate a new contract from scratch," it continued. "New employees would not be classified as civil servants and would not be assured of any of the state employees."

It remains a mystery why, if the hospital is indeed so hamstrung by state regulations, a deal can't be worked out through legislation that could handle the kind of emergencies that supposedly prevent the hospital from "competing.

side from the union's questions, it doesn't seem necessary to restructure an institution that was built by and entrusted to the people of the state of Wisconsin when the purposes of restructuring are dubious at best.
