40-year-old Leonard ponders comeback

Sugar Ray Leonard, 40 years old and five years removed from his last fight, said Thursday he might come out of retirement to fight Hector "Macho" Camacho.

Leonard said he had a "verbal proposal from Camacho's people, but nothing is definite." Early Thursday, John Cirillo, head of boxing at Madison Square Garden said, "It's looming.

Cirillo said the prospect of Leonard's return is more than the standard boxing hyperbole.

"There's no question that both fighters are interested," he said. "And I don't see any reason for a smokescreen if Ray isn't coming back."

Leonard had a detached ret-ina in 1981 and has not fought since losing a 12-round decision to Terry Norris at the Garden Feb. 9, 1991.

Brewers battered again

Mariners find new way to top Milwaukee

By Andrew Cohen Sports reporter

MILWAUKEE - The Seattle Mariners call it the spice of life. The Milwaukee Brewers call it the kiss of the death.

Variety meant different things to different teams Wednesday and Thursday, when Seattle used a variety of ways to strengthen its position as the top scoring team in baseball while Milwaukee saw a variety of its pitchers get shelled.

BREWERS

After smashing a franchise-record seven home runs during Wednesday's 9-3 victory, the Mariners used a more piecemeal approach Thursday, rapping 12 singles and four doubles in a 9-2 American League rout of the Brewers.

'It's a classic example of running into a club that's just hot," Milwaukee manager Phil Garner said after his team doubled as a sleeping pill for 18,425 fans at County Stadium. "I'm not too thrilled we had to play them seven times over these past couple weeks.'

The Brewers (52-56) lost for the eighth time in 11 games, finished 4-9 in their season series with Seattle and fell 71/2 games behind in the AL wild eard man the AL wild card race.

They managed just four hits in seven innings off Jamie Moyer (8-1), who shook off three early errors with a brilliant outing in his first start with Seattle after being traded earlier in the week from Boston.

"You always like to give a good first impression," said Moyer, whose sharp sinker induced 12 ground ball outs.

Weakened by a stomach flu re-lapse, Milwaukee starter Ben McDonald (10-5) delivered a gutty effort before running out of gas in the fifth inning, when Seattle broke a 1-1 tie with three runs.

Rich Amaral, Joey Cora, Alex Rodriguez and Ken Griffey Jr.

are not eligible until 1997.

"It's tough to see Greg go, but we understand the organization has to do what it feels is right," Milwaukee pitcher Cal Eldred said. "It could be a great move. To get three big league guys coming in tells us that the team is looking to improve, and everyone knew it was going to be tough to sign Greg in the off-season." Naturally, Wednesday's trade opened the inning with hits before Garner replaced McDonald with Steve Sparks. The Mariners (59-48) pulled away with four more runs in the sixth on run-scoring hits by Cora and Rodriguez, and Paul Sorrento's year. "I wasn't able to eat anything over the past 24 hours and in the third inning I came in the clubhouse and barfed all over the place. I didn't want to disrupt the entire pitching staff by getting pushed back.'

Thanks to errors by Rodriguez and Griffey, the Brewers took a 1-0 lead in the second but stranded two runners in the third and mustered just three singles after pulling within 4-2 on Pat Listach's double-play grounder in the fifth.

Roster moves: Sparks and Ramon Garcia drew the short straws in Wednesday's trade that sent all-star Greg Vaughn and a minor league player to be named to San Diego for Bryce Florie, Ron Villone and Marc Newfield. To make room for Florie and Villone, both relievers, the Brewers optioned Sparks (4-7, 6.75 earned run average) to Class AAA New Orleans and designated Gar-year for the Brewers and was their only all-star. In 1992, Bones had big league experience but Mieske and Valentin were still in the minors.

'Greg was our best offensive weapon, but we get two quality pitchers who can help our bullpen right away," said Pat Listach, who replaces Vaughn as Milwaukee's elder statesman in terms of longest running continuous service with the team. "Maybe we won't have to score as many runs now."

The Brewers' most pressing immediate challenge, other than climbing back into the wild-card race, is to create a positive envifor Florie and Newfield — none of whom were thrilled to leave a first-place team in beautiful weather for a sub-.500 team in Milwaukee. Newfield, a mediocre defensive player who hit .251 with five home runs and 26 RBI in a reserve role for San Diego this year, is a Southern California native. Florie, known for his darting sinker, had been in the Padres organization since 1988, while the hard-throwing Villone was being groomed as a potential closer. Newfield and Villone, first-round draft picks of the Seattle Mariners in 1990 and 1992, respectively, are no strangers to deadline deals. Both players were traded from Seattle to San Diego last year for pitcher Andy Benes. "When I got traded from Oakland to Pittsburgh, the only thing I knew about Pittsburgh was steel and pollution," Brewers manager Phil Garner said. "We went on to win a World Series in 1979, and that can change your attitude real quick. A lot of times, cities and fellow teammates can change your opinion. Give them a little time here. They'll like it.'

If the Brewers had kept Vaughn, reality says they would cia (3-3, 6.08 ERA) for assignment. Pitching change: Forced to tinker with his starting rotation because of Tuesday's doubleheader with Seattle, Garner said Bones - who has made six relief two-run single off Ricky Bones. "It was a struggle," McDonald said after his shortest start of the appearances since July 18 - will start Saturday at Oakland. Tim VanEgmond is scheduled to start Sunday while Cal Eldred. who is not experiencing any pain but does have a "dead arm," will likely take the mound in Monday's series finale.

Webb holds on to lead at du Maurier

Karrie Webb of Australia shook off two early bogeys to shoot a 68 Friday and expand her lead to 4 shots in the du Maurier Classic in Edmonton, Alberta, the last of the LPGA's four major.

Webb, 21, completed two rounds around the 6,324-yard Edmonton Country Club course at 11-under-par 133.

Meg Mallon shot a 65 Friday, matching Webb's opening-round score, and was at 137 after 36 holes. Dana Dormann was at 5-under 139 after a round of 70. Joining her were Nancy Lopez, who rallied after some early struggles to shoot 71, and Pat Hurst.

Sherri Steinhauer of Madison is 3-under after shooting 68 Friday.

Justin Leonard, seeking his first professional victory, shot an 8-under 64 to take a 2-stroke lead over Rick Fehr after the second round of the PGA Tour Buick Open in Grand Blanc, Mich.

Dave Eichelberger saved par with a 20-foot chip on the final hole for a 6-under 64 and a 1-stroke lead after the first round of the VFW Seniors Championship at Belton, Mo.

Six-year sentence given in Irvin plot

Another chapter in the sordid scandal surrounding Michael Irvin ended Friday with a former Dallas policeman's admis-sion that he plotted to have the Cowboys' star killed.

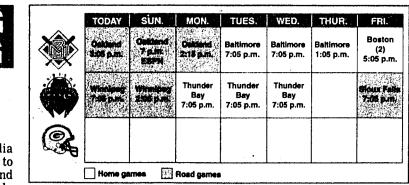

Johnnie Hernandez, 28, received a six-year prison term in exchange for his guilty plea to a solicitation of capital murder charge. He later apologized and accepted responsibility for his actions.

He could have received up to 99 years. With good behavior, he could be paroled in approximately two years, officials said.

Cowboys tight end Jay Novacek, Troy Aikman's favorite target in short-yardage situations, has not recovered from back problems and could miss the entire season.

AUTO RACING Battle at Brickyard Gordon-Earnhardt rivalry continues

By Mike Harris Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS - It's a rivalry of men separated in age by 20 years, a half-dozen championships and completely different styles.

Still, there is little doubt Dale Earnhardt and Jeff Gordon eye each other with the respect and fatalism of Wild West gunslingers.

Earnhardt, 45, is a seven-time Winston Cup champion and the defender of the Brickyard 400 title at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Gordon, who will turn 25 Sunday, is the defending series champion. He won the inaugural Indy stock car race in 1994. He will start the Brickyard from the pole today (noon, Ch. 27) for the second straight year.

There isn't much doubt that the third Indy race would be billed as Earnhardt-Gordon another matchup, but for the fact that Earnhardt is playing hurt. His driving ability is limited by the pain of a broken collar bone and sternum from a race crash last weekend.

But Gordon, who leads the series with six victories and five poles this will let the pain stop him.

The plan announced by Earnhardt and car owner Richard Childress calls for the driver to start the 400-mile race in the team's Chevrolet, then give up the seat to relief driver Mike Skinner.

NASCAR rules give the points earned in a race to the driver who starts the car in the event, and Earnhardt needs the points in his chase of a record eighth series title.

He is third in the standings, trailing Gordon by 23 points and Terry Labonte by 14 going into the 19th of 31 races. That's why Gordon doesn't really believe Earnhardt will give up the wheel.

"I know Dale Earnhardt," Gordon said. "If he's got a good car year, isn't so sure that Earnhardt and things are going well, there's no way you can drag him out of that race car, and that's something we all look up to.

"It definitely makes me want to be a tougher, more aggressive race car driver. There's a lot of things I've learned from Dale, and this will probably be another one of those things.

WISAA schools state case

By Rob Hernandez Sports reporter

STEVENS POINT — All 54 private schools currently aligned with the Wisconsin Independent Schools Athletic Association intend to join the WIAA when WISAA ceases operation in the year 2000, WIAA executive director Doug Chickering said Friday.

Chickering, updating the WIAA Board of Control on an ad-hoc committee created to study issues relating to future membership by WISAA schools, said as many as 40 other independent schools not affiliated with WISAA could also petition to join the WIAA. WISAA requires its schools to have a minimum enrollment of 100 students.

Divisional placement of private schools for WIAA tournament play has been one of the emerging issues during recent discussions. The committee, which met for a second time last week, heard several options, the best-received being a plan that would prorate the private schools using the same percentages used to divide existing WIAA schools into divisions. in essence, 12 private schools could be placed with 96 public nual meeting. schools in Divisions 1 and 2 with the 30 remaining private schools among a third and/or fourth division(s) depending on the sport. The plan would not apply to football. Divisions are set after qualifying schools are identified.

"There was measurable support from the WISAA members who are on that committee for having some sort of adjustment factor," said Chickering, who said another option would allow both public and private schools to petition to move up a division in tournament play.

Two other topics - outlining the definitions of a school and a full-time student — have come up for early discussion, Chickering said. The two issues are a reflection of the increase in home-educated students and the growing number of small, private schools.

Chickering said issues relating to membership options for WISAA schools will be among the topics discussed at WIAA area meetings in September. He hopes to have most issues resolved by next spring in time for a vote of public ing's plan to realign prep conferences in southeastern Wisconsin.

The Board nixed a similar plan from Chickering May 17 and offered one of its own only to reject it at its meeting last month in Wauwatosa. This time, the Board voted, 7-3, to move Wauwatosa West to a smaller conference than the one in which Chickering had placed it.

The plan resolved finding a conference home for the three Racine and two Kenosha high schools by creating a 10-team, two-division conference with those schools in one half and Burlington, Oak Creek, Franklin, South Milwaukee and Muskego in the other. Schools have 40 days to appeal the decision before the Board takes final action on the measure at its Sept. 13 meeting.

Chickering, meanwhile, will direct his energies to realignment in the Madison area. Admitting he won't need to move as many schools, he did say the southeastern saga taught him a lesson.

"Experience will show us that people get much more candid when they see what my intentions are," said Chickering, who will present an initial plan to schools

Jaskowski's trip not a downer

By Eric Vogel Sports reporter

For most 17-year-old girls, winning a state title in swimming would be the highlight of the year. Madison Memorial senior Polly Jaskowski tried to top the experience with a unique summer vacation.

Jaskowski was part of an elite team of U.S. high school swimmers who toured Australia. The team was chosen not only for swimming ability, but also based on academic performance.

Jaskowski returned from Australia just in time to compete in the 32nd annual All-City Swim Meet Friday at the University of Wisconsin Natatorium.

The meet, which continues through Sunday, features more than 1,300 swimmers competing in 68 events. The 12 teams competing represent area swim clubs: Ridgewood, Parkcrest, Middleton, Shorewood, High Point, Monona, Cherokee, Nakoma, Hill Farm. Seminole, Maple Bluff and the West Side Swim Club.

Jaskowski was still thinking about her trip Down Under Friday.

"The whole trip was pretty low key," Jaskowski said. "I wasn't in good swimming shape because we didn't get a lot of practice over there, but I managed to finish second in a couple of the races.'

At last year's WIAA state meet Jaskowski took first place in the 100-yard breaststroke. She admits she still isn't in top form for competition, but she feels these meets serve as sharpeners for the high school swim season.

"The competition at this meet isn't nearly as good as it is during the high school season," Jaskowski said. "Even though I'm a little out of shape I think that I can still finish in the top three.'

Arbitrators to decide Howard's salary

The Miami Heat could offer Juwan Howard $86 million over seven years - $12 million less than he signed for - if arbitrators rule that incentive clauses in the contracts of Tim Hardaway and P.J. Brown must count against Miami's salary cap.

The NBA initially declined to give specific cap figures after rejecting Howard's Heat contract Wednesday. But NBA spokesman Chris Brienza said Saturday Miami would be able to pay Howard a first-year salary of $6.7 million if the Hardaway and Brown bonuses are counted.

TNN.

That would be less than the $8.2 million Howard reportedly was set to earn next season.

With maximum 20 percent raises each season, Howard could earn about $86 million over seven years.

Two arbitrators likely will be chosen Monday or Tuesday. Once the arbitrators are chosen. NBA commissioner David Stern will have no say on the matter, including possible penalties to the Heat.

Filly makes history, wins Hambletonian

Continentalvictory become the first filly to win the Hambletonian in 13 years, holding off a late charge by favored Lindy Lane to win trotting's most prestigious race Saturday at East Rutherford, N.J.

Continentalvictory, last year's 2-year-old filly champion, became the first filly to win the first two legs of the trotter's Triple Crown. She is bidding to be the first Triple Crown winner since Super Bowl in 1972.

Driven by Mike Lachance, Continentalvictory trotted the mile in a stakes record 1:52 4-5 to beat Lindy Lane, breaking the old Hambletonian mark of 1:53 2-5 set by American Winner in 1993.

Earlier in the elimination heats, Continentalvictory tied a world record, winning in 1:52 1-5, 3-5 better than the mark held by Peace Corps and CR Kay Suzie.

Lerner makes a splash

By Eric Vogel Sports reporter

As the West Side Swimming Club closed out Saturday afternoon's events with a first-place finish in the 200-yard free relay, team member A.J. Lerner realized that this was possibly the best day of his swimming career.

West Side edged Ridgewood by .91 seconds to take the title in the freestyle relay. Earlier in the day, Lerner and his teammates set an All-City Swim Meet record in the 9-10-year-old division with a time of 2 minutes, 19.36 seconds in winning the 200 medley relay at the University of Wisconsin Natatorium.

The one thing that I like about swimming is the competition," Lerner said. "I was happy with the way that I swam today, but I think that I can swim even faster."

With as much success as Lerner had in the team events, it's hard to believe that his performances in the individual events were even ° better. Lerner qualified first for today's final in the 100 individual medley with a personal-best time of 1:15.86. He followed that up with another meet record in the 50-yard breaststroke with a time of 36.84 seconds.

"A.J. won the All-City title last year and has also been a state champion in the 8-and-under division," West Side coach Cathy Welton said. "The one person who may be able to challenge him is Parkcrest's Chris Miedaner."

Miedaner swam impressively in his qualifying heat and is seeded second with a time of 38.07 seconds. "Last time that we raced, I thought that I touched him out at the finish," said Miedaner of Lerner. "But the timer said that I didn't and I ended up losing by .05 seconds." Miedaner will also face Lerner in the finals of the 100 individual medley after qualifying eighth. Miedaner and his Parkcrest teammates collected a pair of thirdplace finishes in the 200 medley relay and the 200 free relay.

■ 9-10 girls: Last year, High Point's Laura Plesha had her best individual finish in the 50-yard butterfly - 14th place. This year, Plesha has put herself in position to take home two individual titles. She is seeded second in both the 50 freestyle and the 100 indi-vidual medley. Brianna Fergusson of Ridgewood posted the best time in the individual medley at 1:18.03. In the 50 freestyle, Caitlin Digney of Monona edged Plesha by .17 seconds.

"Laura had two very good coaches in David Joyce and Rachel Wendt," said Laura's mother, Gloria Plesha. "I think that she just keeps on getting better because they know how to work with her and she really loves to swim."

Parkcrest's Terri Schramka qualified for the finals in both the 50 freestyle and the 50 backstroke.

"When she was 10 months old, we let her go in the pool," said Barb Schramka, Terri's mother. 'She would dive in and then climb back out onto the deck over and over again.'

Schramka has already earned a third- and eighth-place finishes in the 200 medley relay and the 200 freestyle relay, respectively.

Bengals agree to terms with No. 1 pick

The Cincinnati Bengals reached agreement Saturday on a five-year contract with first-round draft choice Willie Anderson, who has missed three weeks of training camp. Financial terms of the deal were not disclosed.

Anderson, a 6-foot-5, 335-pound former Auburn offensive lineman drafted 10th overall, is scheduled to sign Monday when he arrives in the team's training camp. ■ Tim Biakabutuka, the first-round draft choice of the Carolina Panthers, says he wants to meet with the team's general manager to discuss ending his two-week holdout.

Biakabutuka has written a letter to Bill Polian, inviting him to call and discuss the negotiations.

Penn State unveiled an assortment of new logos and typefaces Saturday featuring a fresh illustration of the Nittany Lion.

The four logos, described by a focus group of fans as displaying strength, pride and nobility, show a lion's head from different profiles. They will compliment, not replace, the university's existing logos, said Daniel Sieminski, Penn State's director of finance and business.

In addition to the Lions' familiar blue and white colors, the new logo has silver accents.

"We are attempting to respond to suggestions that we provide an identity that is less formal than those presently available," Sieminski said at football media day. The new logos will not affect the football team's famous plain uniforms.

'It looks mean, I kinda like it," Penn State football coach Joe Paterno said. Asked whether he would put it on the team uniforms, he said: "No, but I may put it on my Jockey shorts.

Peter Bondra, Michal Pivonka and former University of Wisconsin star Jim Carey, has died of leukemia. He was 56.

Button, who also helped keep the Pittsburgh Penguins from being disbanded in the mid-1970s and lost his general manager's job for his trouble. died Wednesday night at a hospital in Washington. He had worked with the Capitals for the past 17 years, mostly as director of player personnel and recruitment.

MITCH ALBOM COMMENTARY

That sound you heard was America

ATLANTA — That sound you heard was a bomb. The explosion at Centennial Park that claimed one life and affected thousands of others may be your first memory when someone says, "Olympics, 1996."

But not your last.

That sound you heard was also the roar of astonishment. Michael Johnson blazed into another world in the 200-meter final, and even Johnson, so control-happy he irons his track suits, let out a scream and threw his hands to the sky. A few nights earlier Canada's Donovan Bailey did the same thing at the same spot on the Olympic track, screaming as he smashed the world record in the 100.

Astonishment? A freckle-faced swimmer named Amy Van Dyken won four gold medals, including one in the butterfly, which she later acknowledged: "I hadn't even practiced!" Astonishment? The United States won a gold medal in women's gymnastics, the Chinese swimmers disappeared, and Nigeria — Nigeria? — won the soccer gold medal.

That sound you heard was the drip of tears. A Greco-Roman wrestler, Matt Ghaffari, wept on the medal stand after losing to his Russian nemesis for the 21st straight time. And later, on those same mats, a wrestler named Kurt Angle also cried, on his knees, hands together in prayer. He was weeping for the joy of his new gold medal, and for the grief he could not share it with an old friend, former University of Wisconsin assistant coach Dave Schultz, who had been shot dead.

The women's softball team cried in each others' arms, the

U.S. women perfect in basketball

ATLANTA — Now this was truly a Dream Team.

The U.S. women's basketball team, every bit as dominant as their male counterparts, finished one of the most impressive runs in the Olympics by beating Brazil, 111-87, for the gold medal Sunday night.

The victory re-established the Americans as the world's best, avenging a loss to Brazil in the 1994 world championship and reclaiming the Olympic gold they last won in Seoul in 1988.

Team. I think they appreciate the way we always came out and fought hard."

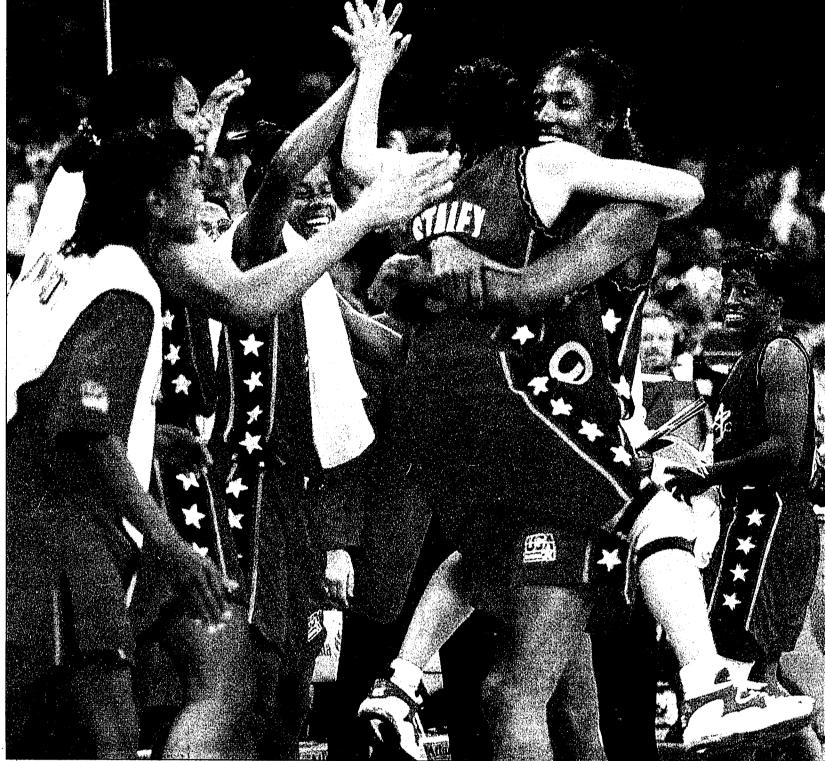

The game was the final event of these Summer Games, all the more fitting in an Olympics where American women demonstrated their power as never before.

"This is sweet, awesome," said Teresa Edwards. "We enjoyed it all the way to the end."

The U.S. team swept through eight Olympic opponents, improving its record to 60-0 since the team was put together less than a year ago. Lisa Leslie led the Americans with 29 points.

"This a crowning moment for this team and for women's basketball in the United States because we brought the gold back home," Rebecca Lobo said.

They won this game the same way they won most of the others: strong inside play, timely outside shooting, and a big run at the start of the second half. They shot 66

They also showed a lot of crowd-pleasing flair — something the men's version of the Dream Team didn't show often enough.

Katrina McClain dominated inside. Sheryl Swoopes and Ruthie Bolton scored from the perimeter, while four-time Olympian Edwards ran the show.

And Leslie was everywhere.

"I just knew I wanted to win and have my teammates count on me scoring inside," said Leslie, who was 12-for-14 from the field. "It's the best game I've ever

The crowd of 32,997 at the Georgia Dome cheered throughout the game, something that didn't occur when the U.S. men's team played. This team didn't need Charles Barkley leading a Y-M-C-A dance to excite the folks.

The players hugged, shot their index fingers in the air, signifying at last — that they were atop women's basketball again. Then they ran around the court, waving to the fans, hugging some more.

turned cartwheels.

Later, tears streamed from Leslie's eyes as she and her teammates walked to the medals stand, cheers ringing in their ears. Tears also welled in coach Tara VanDerveer's eyes as assistant coach Marian Washington wrapped an arm around her.

With a minute to go, VanDerveer had allowed herself to smile, and then walked along the bench to congratulate everyone.

Swoopes finished with 16 points, Bolton 15 and McClain 12. Edwards had nine points and 10 assists.

Edwards got a piece of history as the first basketball player to win three Olympic gold medals. McClain won her second gold, to go with a bronze.

The two, former college teammates at the University of Georgia, leave having set most every U.S. Olympic basketball record.

This was the real Dream Team.

Murphy captures third City title

Holds off field on his home course

By Rob Hernandez Sports reporter

Priorities have changed, expectations have changed and even his hairline has changed. But, through the years, two things about Mike Murphy have remained the same:

His 80-something parents, Ed and Regina, follow him to every tournament. Their son still knows his way around a golf course.

And while he took the scenic route more often than he probably wanted to Sunday, Murphy still accomplished what he had set out to do on his home course at Cherokee Country Club. He played respectable golf and emerged as champion of the Madison City Men's Golf Tournament for the third time.

Murphy, two weeks shy of his 41st birthday, bogeyed his final two holes for a 4-over-par 76 to close out a 3-shot win over fellow Cherokee member Greg Moser. It marked the most convincing of his three triumphs — he beat Warren Dailey and Brent Beer by 1 shot in 1976 and Jerry Kelly by the same margin in 1987 — even if this final round wasn't Murphy's best work.

"I'm just not used to playing under pressure," said Murphy, who finished 72 holes at 6-over 291. "I don't play enough tournament golf and it really got to me today. Somehow, I managed to get it in the hole when I had to."

Murphy survived a shaky showing off the tee with a deft touch on the greens, making three straight par putts of 4 feet or more starting at No. 12. The biggest came at No. 13 in a key exchange with his closest pursuer at the time - Cherokee's Mike Douglas, who incurred a triple-bogey 7 on the 370-yard hole to fall 4 shots off the pace.

Fortunately for Murphy, no one else was close enough to threaten.

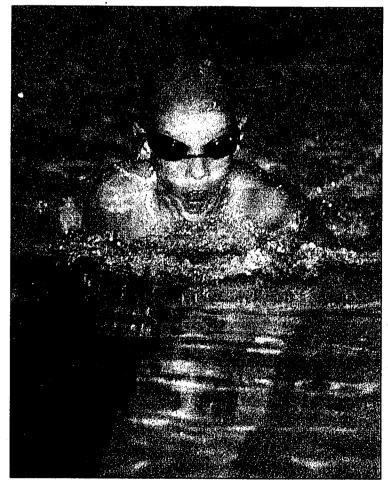

There wasn't a golfer under the age of 30 within 11 shots of the lead when the day began and there was only one there when it ended 1995 champion Chris Caulum, 22, of Blackhawk who shot 73 to take eighth at 299. Moser matched par 72 to lead the chase for second, finishing at 294 - ahead of Blackhawk's Tom Huset (73-295), Cherokee's Douglas (78-296) and Blackhawk's Brad Byce (76-297).

'You have to hand it to him," Moser said of Murphy. "Last year, he came in here with the lead, had a bad last round (84) and didn't hold it together. This year, he rose to the challenge and got it done.

That's what makes Mike the Telgheder stifles Brewers' attack

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — He has just one American League victory, and already Dave Telgheder is being talked up as the possible ace of the Oakland Athletics' starting rotation.

'He's been our most consistent pitcher for the past month," Oakland manager Art Howe said after Telgheder pitched seven strong innings to beat the Milwaukee Brewers, 4-2, Sunday night.

"He should be 5-0, to be honest with you," Howe added. "We tend to make it tough on him as far as run production goes. We got two for him tonight and he made it stand up.

Telgheder (1-2), who has a 2.84 earned run average, gave up one run and six hits in seven innings. He struck out five and walked one as the Athletics stopped a threegame losing streak.

Billy Taylor got the final two outs in the ninth inning for his 13th save. He allowed an RBI groundout to John Jaha.

Jeff Cirillo's two-out single and Dave Nilsson's RBI double put Milwaukee (54-57) ahead, 1-0, in the first, but Telgheder settled down and faced one batter over the minimum from the third through the seventh innings.

Oakland (56-56) rallied to take a 2-1 lead in the fourth against Brewers starter Tim VanEgmond (1-2). Jason Giambi singled and Geronimo Berroa walked before Terry Steinbach lined a two-out double off the left-field wall to score both runners.

Oakland increased its lead to 4-1 in the sixth inning. Scott Brosius, who went 3-for-4, and Giambi both singled. Mark McGwire followed with a run-scoring single and Berroa added a sacrifice fly.

VanEgmond gave up four runs and eight hits in seven innings. He struck out two and walked two.

Brewers shortstop Jose Valentin is listed day-to-day with a bruise on he tip of is right index finger. He pinch hit with two outs in the ninth and lined out.

Chang dominating in two-set victory

The fourth time was a charm for Michael Chang.

After losing his three previous appearances in the final, Chang finally won the Infiniti Open in Los Angeles Sunday, dominating Wimbledon champion Richard Krajicek in the process.

Masterful in almost every aspect of his game, Chang downed the error-prone Krajicek, who was playing for the first time since his Wimbledon triumph, 6-4, 6-3, in a final that lasted just one hour, 12 minutes.

Back on tour after a threeweek break, Krajicek began the match with a double fault. Things didn't get much better.

Krajicek, whose 3-1 career record against Chang heading into the match included a win in the 1993 Los Angeles final, never seemed to get his rhythm this time, making a string of unforced errors that included several easy overheads that he slammed into the net.

Chang broke service in the first game and again in the seventh to go up 5-2, then finally closed out the opening set with an ace.

The 5-foot-9 Chang, who kept the 6-5 Krajicek scurrying back and forth from sideline to sideline most of the match, broke service again in the seventh game of the second set to take command.

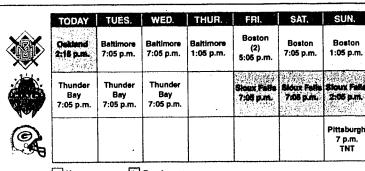

When you're able to hold up a trophy in any place in the world, it's special, and it's especially nice for me here," said Chang, winning in his hometown tournament for the first time. "It's nice to finally come through after being in the finals here three times before.'

Although he was never really in the match against Chang, Krajicek was not displeased with his play in the tournament.

"I see it as a positive thing," he said. "I hadn't played in three weeks. Hitting the ball well will come.'

Krajicek had nine aces to seven for Chang, but Chang's second serve was considerably more effective. Chang won 22 of 31 points on his second serve, while Krajicek won just 11 of his

Champions twice over

Skolaski, Flint get their fill of victory

By Eric Vogel Sports reporter

The All-City Swim Meet features more than 1,300 swimmers competing in 68 events, so winning an individual title is not an easy task. The task was made even more difficult in the 13- and 14-year-old division because two swimmers got greedy and won two events each Sunday at the University of Wisconsin Natatorium.

Double winners on the girls side were Nakoma's Jennifer Skolaski and Jackie Flint of Parkcrest.

Skolaski defended her titles in the 100-yard freestyle and 100 individual medley. Her individual medley time of 1 minute, 3.31 seconds was an All-City record.

"She's an all-around good swimmer, every stroke that she does is just fantastic," said Nakoma coach Cory Claffey-Koller. "It's a real blast for me to coach her." Flint defended her 50 butterfly title with an All-City record time of 27.36 seconds in the preliminaries and :27.43 in the finals. She also won the 100-yard breaststroke.

"I've been working really hard all summer," said Flint. "I set a record in the butterfly last year and I wanted to do it again.'

On the boys side, Shorewood's Paul Brehm shattered the meet record of 58.16 seconds, which he set Saturday, in the 100 backstroke with a time of :56.84. Brehm defeated his nearest competitor by 6 seconds.

He followed up with a second-place finish to Middleton's David Mazur in the 50 butterfly.

■ 15- through 18-year-old division: Ben Jones of Hill Farm was seeded first in both the 200 individual medley and the 100 breast-stroke. Jones lived up to his ranking by winning both events. In the breaststroke he set All-City records in both the preliminaries and in the finals.

"This is the fastest that I've swam in awhile," said Jones. "I was nervous about the IM, but I

MIAMI - Although Heat coach Pat Riley says he believes Juwan Howard wants to remain with Miami, Howard's attorney, David Falk, reportedly has contacted Howard's former team, the Washington Bullets, about reopening negotiations if the star forward's Heat contract is rejected by arbitrators.

Riley says Howard told him he wants to stay with the Heat. The NBA disallowed Howard's contract Wednesday, and two unde-'termined arbitrators will rule in the next two weeks o n whether Miami exceeded the salary cap to sign Howard.

Riley has said he's optimistic the Heat will prevail in arbitration, and Sunday's Washington Post quoted a player's association source as saying Howard's contract likely will be upheld and he probably will stay with the Heat.

NORTHERN

Howard talking with Bullets

But Falk apparently is leaving his options open in case the Heat is not granted the salary-cap space to make Howard an offer close to the seven-year, $98 million deal he signed last month. Sunday's Washington Post, quoting a source, said Falk has been in contact with Bullets general manager Wes Unseld, who confirmed he is ready to make an offer.

But Unseld has not yet made an offer for Howard because the league has not given the go-ahead, Bullets publicist Maureen Lewis said Sunday night.

The Heat may be at risk of losing more than Howard. Henry Thomas, the agent for point guard Tim Hardaway, said Hardaway's new contract has not yet been approved by the NBA, apparently because of concerns about how many of his incentive bonuses should count against the cap.

If Hardaway's contract is disapproved and if Howard bolts, would Hardaway want to sign elsewhere? Thomas would not address that, but said, "Tim was looking forward to playing with Juwan. Tim wants to play for a championship contender. If the team isn't made up the way he had anticipated, it certainly would have an impact on him.

Dave Wohl, the Heat's executive vice president of basketball operations, would not comment on Howard. Riley was unavailable Sunday, and Falk and his associates have declined comment for several days.

An NBA spokesman said it's unclear whether Howard is permitted to negotiate with another team before the arbitration hearing. Friday, Dade County Circuit Court Judge Joseph Farina granted the Heat a temporary injunction to prevent another team from signing Howard until the legality of his Heat contract is determined by arbitrators.

At the moment, the Bullets have no remaining salary cap space. The NBA says that if Howard's contract is rejected, arbitrators will decide whether Washington could exceed the salary cap to re-sign Howard at any cost.

Even if the Bullets are allowed to exceed the cap, Washington would have to clear - and set aside — $3.4 million.

Edberg receives farewell ceremony

Stefan Edberg and Todd Martin were both winners Monday night

Edberg, making his farewell tour before his retirement from pro tennis, was honored at the ATP Championship in Mason, Ohio, with gifts, a standing ovation and a surprise rendition of the Swedish national anthem.

Martin, playing his first match since being upset in the semifinals at Wimbledon, easily battled his way into the second round of the hardcourt tournament, defeating fellow American Michael Joyce 6-0, 6-4.

Edberg received a painting of himself and $15,000 in checks for a foundation he has established with $300.000 of his own money to provide tennis education for teenagers in his native Sweden.

Edberg, 30, plays the opening match of his final ATP Championship tournament today against Stefano Pescosolido. Edberg has played the tournament 14 consecutive years, winning twice and reaching the final six times.

'It is giving people a chance to come out and see you play and say goodbye. That's what it's all about," Edberg said.

■ Ann Grossman knocked Montreal's Patricia Hy-Boulais out of the du Maurier Open, beating Canada's leading player, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, in the first round of the country's top women's tournament in Montreal. Top-seeded Monica Seles received a first-round bye.

Lemieux will skip hockey's World Cup

Mario Lemieux, still undecided about returning to the Pittsburgh Penguins, has ruled out playing for Canada in the World Cup.

"In no way should this be construed as a signal that I will not be playing for the Penguins this year," Lemieux said Monday. "I still need a little more time to decide."

Lemieux, 30, returned last season after sitting out the 1994-95 NHL season to recover from chemotherapy for Hodgkin's disease and to rest his back. If he decides not to play, Lemieux will forego a contract worth nearly $11 million.

When it was announced last

Brewers' deal floors fans

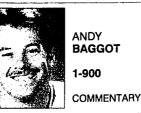

Almost a week has passed since the Milwaukee Brewers actually made a reasoned midseason trade and many of the fans that fainted dead away at the stunning news are still motionless on the ground. General manager Sal Bando not only parted with a player at the absolute height of his value, he addressed a need for pitching and chopped $5 million off the payroll in the process. While medics slap some cheeks and crack open another box of smelling salts, you are asked to consider some more unsolicited thoughts this morning:

Bando has done some dopey things during his tenure as Brewers GM, but his efforts this season are mostly commendable. Ben McDonald, the last two weeks notwithstanding, was a very good free-agent pickup. To date, Milwaukee is the only team picking among the top 10 that has signed its No. 1 draft choice (Chad Green). And peddling Greg Vaughn to San Diego not only was prudent, it was so out of character for a Brewers GM that somewhere Harry Dalton is in absolute shock.

■ The three best Summer Olympic performances: 1) Michael Johnson not only doubling in the men's 200 and 400 meters, but running the most awe-inspiring 19.32 seconds ever; 2) Kerri Strug showing us that gymnastics is as much about pain and toughness as it is grace and flexibility; 3) Muhammad Ali.

As most everyone knows, the first casualty of rampant hype is sensibility. That explains why Green Bay Packers fans, including TV play-by-play goof Bill Jartz, seemed stunned and distressed that Brett Favre looked rusty against New England Friday. People, exhibition games, especially the very first one, are about rust and little else. Lighten up, or none of you will make it to the season opener alive.

The biggest jerk of the Summer Games? Linford Christie broke from the blocks quickly and assumed the early lead with his prolonged whine that delayed the men's 100-meter final. Then came Joe Frazier, the former heavyweight boxing great, who took some truly tasteless jabs at Ali, his long-time nemesis who has Parkinson's syndrome. But the top spot on this medal stand is occupied by Carl Lewis. Lewis went from respected icon after he won the long jump to a self-indulgent jerk after he campaigned for a spot on the same relay team with which he refused to train a few weeks ago.

If only Lewis had followed the lead of two other U.S. Olympic greats in the twilight of their careers. Heptathlete and long jumper Jackie Joyner-Kersee and wrestler Bruce Baumgartner displayed as much heart and dignity in winning bronze medals as anyone who won gold.

🔳 New Milwaukee Bucks coach Chris Ford has had his first taste of culture shock. Of his move from New England to the upscale Milwaukee suburb of Mequon, Ford said: "Real estate isn't any cheaper, and taxes are double what they are in Massachusetts.'

Can hardly wait to digest the zippy prose of Mike Holmgren, who has been hired to share his thoughts on life, liberty and the West Coast offense in a weekly column in the Appleton Post-Crescent. The investigation of Keith

Olbermann is ongoing, but sources say a prime suspect is on the verge of being identified. Olbermann has been making references to local landmarks on ESPN "SportsCenter." He has refused to explain how he knows about places like Yahara Hills Golf Course, Billy Rowe Field in Verona or Bump's Bluff in Evansville. One thing that can be revealed: His informant is a woman.

The best Olympic moment we will never see: U.S. women's soccer goaltender Briana Scurry running naked through the streets of Athens, Ga. She had vowed to do so if the Americans won the gold medal. A teammate videotaped the 2 a.m. excursion (for posterity.

The Packers would seem to have one of the most seasoned rosters around, but the first month of training camp tells us that rookies John Michels and Derrick Mayes will have a huge impact on what transpires before January.

Without question, the performance of women headlined the Summer Games, but it says here that NBC had minimal impact on that development. Instead of a balanced diet, we were forced to gorge on gymnastics. Personally, it would have been nice to sample more of the softball, soccer and basketball.

Just a bit coincidental that the first full series in which Vaughn plays for San Diego is against Florida and Gary Sheffield. Not only are Vaughn and Sheffield good buddies and former Brewers teammates, Sheffield also was traded from Milwaukee to the Padres.

Finally, proof that the Olympic flame does not flicker inside us all. When a Greek weightlifter failed to earn a medal, a Greek reporter began a; news conference by saying: "You are a disgrace to your country. Please respond."

Five days after the NBA rejected his seven-year, $100 million deal with the Miami Heat, free agent Juwan Howard has re-signed with the Washington Bullets.

However, a Florida court decision will determine exactly whose uniform the forward will be wearing this fall.

The Bullets signed Howard to a seven-year deal Monday after agreeing to forfeit their first-round selection in next year's college draft. Terms were not disclosed.

"We are very pleased that Juwan Howard will be in a Bullets uniform next season and for years to come," Bullets general manager Wes Unseld said in a statement announcing the signing.

Howard's agent, David Falk, was not available for comment. Howard, who finished 10th in the NBA in scoring last season with a 22.1 points per game average, also refused to comment.

The Bullets and the NBA said the deal is contingent on a judicial decision. "The Howard-Washington contract is subject to the terms of the injunction issued by a state court judge in Florida, to the extent those terms are valid and binding," the NBA said in a statement.

After becoming a free agent, Howard turned down a reported $90 million offer by the Bullets in July and signed with Miami. The NBA rejected the Miami deal last Wednesday, saying the Heat exceeded the league's salary cap by agreeing to pay Howard $9 million next season.

Last Friday, the Heat went to court in Florida, challenging the NBA's decision. Dade County Circuit Judge Joseph Farina issued a temporary injunction prohibiting Howard and the NBA from entering into or approving an NBA contract until arbitrators settle the dispute over Howard's contract.

A hearing to settle the dispute is scheduled later this month.

David Osnos, a Bullets attorney, said the deal with Howard would not be "fully effective until certain legal issues regarding the arrangement between Howard and the Miami Heat have been resolved." Monday's signing did cost the month that Howard had reached agreement with Miami, the Bullets renounced their rights to the 6-foot-9 player, who had spent his first two years with Washington.

But after disapproving the Miami contract, commissioner David Stern determined Washington was eligible to reacquire Howard's rights, the NBA said in a statement released Monday night.

However, since Washington had engaged in a number of other player transactions after renouncing the rights to Howard, Stern concluded the Bullets must forfeit their 1997 first-round draft choice if they wished to sign Howard.

Transactions: The New York Knicks will announce the signings of their three first-round draft picks - John Wallace, Walter McCarty and Dontae' Jones ---today at Madison Square Garden.

... The Chicago Bulls formally resigned free agent Dennis Rodman. Terms of the one-year contract were not disclosed, but it is rumored to be slightly less than $10 million. ... Alton Lister, a 37-year-old center who joined the Celtics in a November trade with Milwaukee, re-signed with Boston.

Far be it from Tony Marabella and Jim Vatcher to let a little rain ruin their evening. While the Madison Black Wolf's Northern League game against Thunder Bay was washed out Monday night, the pair waited out the 6:30 p.m. storm on lawn chairs in short left field.

And they enjoyed every minute. "We're still waiting for the hard stuff," a drenched Vatcher said with a smirk.

The game will be made up as part of a doubleheader tonight, with the first of two seven-inning games starting at 5:30 p.m.

Tickets can be redeemed for tonight's games or for any game other than Aug. 17.
